WISCONSIN WEATHER

Mostly fair tonight and Wednesday; slightly warmer Wednesday and west and north portion tonight.

GENERAL WEATHER

The low pressure area which remained over the lake region for two days causing squally weather has now moved to the maritime provinces of Canada. It is followed by a high pressure area over the central valleys, with generally fair and cool weather over most of the country east of the Rockies. It will cause cool weather here yet tonight. The pressure is lower over the Canadian northwest, which may cause rising temperature and increasing cloudiness here by Wednesday as it advances.

ESTIMATE TODAY'S VOTE AT 500,000

nomination for lieutenant governor, while George M. Sheldon, aspires to be attorney general.

PROGRESSIVES IN BATTLE

Whether the Progressives continue to be the voice of Wisconsin in the house of representatives depends on the outcome of the primary to a considerable extent. Nine of the ten Progressive congressmen are seeking another term and all have opposition from Conservatives, with the exception of Representative Florian Lampert of Oshkosh. Gardner Withrow of La Crosse, former assemblyman, is backed by the La Follette Progressive organization to succeed Beck, who has been in congress for eight years. Victor L. Berger, only Socialist in congress, is asking the voters of the Fifth district (Milwaukee) to renominate him over the opposition of Julius Kiessner, former assemblyman.

What the Democrats would do at the polls Tuesday was a subject of concern to the Republican gubernatorial candidates. That was due to the fact that in past primaries, thousands have helped settle the contests between Progressives and Conservatives for the Republican nomination and according to Democratic leaders furthered the cause of the La Follette faction. Contests and the necessity for polling a sufficiently large vote to qualify for places on the ballot in the November election was expected by John M. Callahan, Democratic national committeeman.

to hold thousands of Democrats in their own party but he was apprehensive that "conditions" would cause others to vote Republican.

PROMISE RETURNS AT BAND CONCERT

Results of Vote Will Be Announced During Program, Leader Says

Appleton, people interested in election returns will not miss any of the results if they attend the band concert Tuesday evening at Pierce park, according to E. F. Mumm, director. Arrangements are being made to announce election returns during the concert, Mr. Mumm said.

Tuesday evening's program will be made up of old favorite numbers, many of which have been played during the summer and were appreciated by audiences. Among them is Echoes of the Metropolitan Opera. No set program has been arranged, the evening being devoted to miscellaneous numbers of which the old favorites will be a large part, and to request numbers.

John R. Miller, Atlantic-st and Hugh Brinkman, John-st, will spend the weekend fishing at Pickerel Lake.

SCHOOL HEAD IS BACK FROM EUROPE

Miss Carrie Morgan Returns Monday from Vacation Tour of Six Weeks

Miss Carrie Morgan, assistant superintendent of schools, returned Monday from a six weeks tour of Europe with the Olympic Tour under the direction of Knute Rockney. Miss Morgan spent a week at the Olympic games at Amsterdam, took a trip up the Rhine, climbed Mount Rigi, visited Cologne, Lucerne, Rome, Milan, Interlaken, Paris and London, and witnessed a water fete in Venice. Part of the group, including Miss Morgan, flew from Paris to London, at an altitude of 6,000 feet.

Miss Morgan sailed from Glasgow on the Transylvania. It was on this boat that the delicate operation, reported in yesterday's newspapers, was performed on the chief engineer of the Italian tanker, Perseo. The engineer had been knifed by a stow-away, and when it became evident that he would die from loss of blood without proper surgical attention, the Transylvania was signaled, and the man transferred in a life boat to the hospital deck of the larger boat. In mid ocean Dr. William C. Barrie, on board the Transylvania, mended the severed artery. The operation took one and one-half hours.

On the return trip to the Perseo, the latest reports state, the lifeboat carrying the injured man became lost in the fog, and when picked up five hours later the patient was almost exhausted. It is probable that the arm will have to be amputated.

Miss Lydia Heller was taken seriously ill over the weekend while visiting at her home in Shawano and rushed to St. Elizabeth hospital here where she submitted to an operation.

SMALL BOY IS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

A 12-year-old son of Arthur Grindle, Whiting, Ind., received a cut on the forehead and the Grindle automobile was badly damaged when it crashed into a telephone pole on the corner of N. Richmond-st and W. Commercial-st Saturday morning, while trying to avoid hitting a light truck belonging to the Hofensperger Meat Market.

According to the police report both cars were going north on N. Richmond-st and the delivery truck cut to the left in front of Grindle to turn onto Commercial-st. Grindle, in an attempt to avoid hitting the truck broadside, went over the curbing and hit the pole.

ANGLO-CATHOLICS WIN CONTROL OF ENGLISH CHURCH

Leader of Group Is Appointed Archbishop of Canterbury

BY BATES HANEY
Canterbury, England — (P)— The Anglo-Catholic movement will reach a high level of power when Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang assumes the throne of St. Augustine as Archbishop of Canterbury in November. The movement within the Anglican church for union with Rome was started by Cardinal Newman in Oxford almost a century ago. Despite a serious split in their ranks leaders of the movement have steadily extended their influence.

One wing of the Anglo-Catholics led by Lord Halifax looks toward a union with Rome and the Vatican as its ultimate goal, the other wing sees a solution of church problems only in the disassociation of church and state and the creation of an independent English Catholic church. So disturbed is the evangelical side over the recent gains made by the high churchmen, notably in the appointment of vigorous Anglo-Catholics to leadership of the church in the posts of Lord Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Archbishop of York, that the Protestant Alliance announced it observed "with regret and indignation that in recent ecclesiastical appointments no regard is shown to the opinion of the house of commons as expressed in its rejection of the new prayer book. Two prominent supporters of that book have now been selected to fill the highest positions in the national church."

Almost a century has passed since Cardinal Newman, then Vicar of St. Mary's, preached the first of his now famous sermons in the University Church of Oxford, but the movement, which he inaugurated and later abandoned when his famous Tract No. 90 made his position so advanced that he either had to stop or go over to Roman Catholicism, the latter of which he did, has moved steadily forward with steadfast purpose.

In direct contrast with the present power of the Anglo-Catholics which permits the free practice of certain Roman Catholic rites in some Church of England chapels, many churchmen now living can recall the time when ritualistic services in England were never safe from the blasphemous interruptions of hooligans and worshippers were subjected to insults and even physical violence, when members of some high church congregations had even to stand guard in shifts to prevent the desecration of their altars.

Today Catholicism, although stronger among the Church of England clergy than among the lay members, has reached the very core of the national church and the appointment of two Anglo-Catholics to the primacies of Canterbury and York has given it control of the upper hierarchy where heretofore it has not been strongly represented.

Just as Cardinal Newman's Anglo-Catholic Movement of the nineteenth century was a reaction to the Wesleyan Evangelical movement of the eighteenth century, so the strengthening and consolidation of the Anglo-Catholics today may be considered an answer to the drawing together of the various evangelical churches of the British Empire.

In the evangelical wing of Christendom, England, in recent years, has witnessed the reunion of by far the greater part of the two Presbyterian schisms from the Established Church of Scotland and many churchmen feel that the healing of the breach between those bodies and the Established Church itself will not long be delayed. Rapid progress

FOUR HURT WHEN CAR HITS REAR OF BUGGY

A coupe driven by Harry Bronson of Seymour crashed into the rear end of a buggy driven by Frank Demerath, town of Grand Cote at 8:30 Thursday evening. Both vehicles were traveling south on Highway 47.

The occupants of the buggy, Mr. Demerath and his three children, were bruised and considerably shaken up, and the horse was slightly injured. The buggy was a total wreck, and the Seymour car was damaged to a considerable extent.

11 MORE CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSE LISTS

Eleven more Outagamie-co candidates for nomination to county offices in the September primary election filed expense accounts with the county clerk Saturday. Frank Wheeler candidate for nomination as district attorney spent $146, E. C. Smith $127.93, Raymond Dohr $75.58, Barney Hoffman $53.38, Peter G. Schwartz $67.70, A. F. Crevier $14.80, Edward Lutz $112.37, William Vandenberg $82.34, John E. Rohan $7.35, Frederick Giese, $183.74 and Theodore Glaser $133.74.

STOLEN CARS
Appleton police have been asked to watch for two Wisconsin cars stolen during the last few days. One is a 1928 model Chevrolet coach stolen at Chilton Friday and bearing the Wisconsin license C 181-386. The motor number is 4078234 and the serial number 21A21020.

The other car was stolen at West Allis, Aug. 29 and is an Oakland coupe, 1926 model. The Wisconsin number is C 65-365 and the motor number 69772-54.

is being made toward unity by the three groups into which English Methodism has been split. The growing understanding between the various religious bodies in England known as the nonconformists has led the formation of a Free Church Council.

On the other hand this unity is easily balanced on the catholic side. This is illustrated by the increasingly cordial understanding between the Anglican and Eastern Orthodox branches of the catholic church. Church of England clerics are received affectionate courtesy by members of the Russian, Greek and Armenian churches. They are permitted to say mass in the Greek Monastery of Abraham close to the Holy Sepulchre and at Nazareth the Greek Metropolitan invites English clerics to give communion in his own private chapel.

These are details but they are symptomatic of the persistent movement toward inter-communication between the Orthodox and Anglican Catholic churches.

FOND DU LAC TEAM

Neenah—After being on the losing end for practically the entire season of a 16 game schedule, the Neenah Menasha team came through Sunday at Fond du Lac with a win, defeating the valley league team of that city by a score of 8 to 6. The team closed its season Monday afternoon at Kimberly where it lost 7 to 2. The Neenah-Menasha aggregation started with what appeared to be good lineup but which failed tactically. A complete change was made with an effort to better conditions, and as a last resort Manager Arthur Larson took in a number of young men just out of high school who came through in better shape than many of the old timers. The youngsters finished the season.

"LOVE FOR TWO"

by Ruth Dewey Groves
1928 By N. E. A. Service, Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BERTIE LOU WARD, on the eve of her wedding to ROD BRYER, feels a premonition of trouble when she receives a dagger-like paper knife from LILA MARSH, who has turned Rod down because is not wealthy. But she courageously resolves not to be jealous of Rod's past love affair since his future is in her keeping. Bertie Lou receives another blow to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bridesmaid ask another if she thought the bride liked being second choice. But the pain vanishes when Rod whispers "My wife" with a world of adoration in his eyes. They spend an idyllic honeymoon in a mountain resort, and Bertie Lou forgets the shadow cast by the ex-sweetheart until they return and find Lila acting as dictator in their apartment because she "knows what Rod likes."

The newlyweds settle down in their little home, but entertainment and the demands of hospitality deplete their finances. Bertie Lou is worried both about her budget and Lila's persistent annoyance. So she urges Rod to accept a position in New York which has been offered him by an old friend, TOM FRASER. But the serpent is not cast out of their Eden, for just as they are saying farewell to friends at the station, Lila announces her intention of seeing them soon in New York, for she is going to visit MOLLY FRASER.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX
Bertie Lou's newly-found sense of security vanished instantly on Lila's words. "I might have known it," she walked inwardly.

But her audible answer was quite different. "We'll tell New York you're coming," she said with the smiling sarcasm that had characterized their conversation since her marriage. Lila hastily turned her back.

"Watch out for those little wild flowers growing on the old road path," she warned Rod. "Broadway's outgrown its age of innocence, they say."

"And don't buy the Brooklyn Bridge. They're going to build a bigger one across the Hudson, I hear," Tommy White shouted after him as he followed Bertie Lou to the Pullman platform.

They stood there, waving goodbye until a bend in the road turned them from a last view and bumped their way through the vestibule to their section. Bertie Lou sank down on the green plush seat with a tired sigh.

There were soft violet shadows around her eyes to testify to the physical and emotional strain of giving up the flat.

But it had not saddened her overmuch, however. To her mind the future stretched like a golden ribbon before them. Its new promise helped her to forget the dull conviction that had dimmed her brightest hopes. The conviction that Rod's progress in Wayville would be discouragingly slow. It had grown gradually upon Bertie Lou as she realized the impossibility of keeping up with their old friends and saving money at the same time.

It was different, she found, having a place of their own. They seemed as a married couple, to bear a much larger share of the entertaining than fell to the single members of their set. And their little flat had been popular—too popular. "Let's go up and see Rod and Bertie Lou," had been a common phrase in the town. And Bertie Lou liked it. So did Rod. Too much to put a stop to it. Their desire to curtail their social activities was forgotten when the fun began.

Afterward Bertie Lou always wished she'd said no. It was the thought of getting away from temptation, making a fresh start, and escaping from Lila's unending efforts to embarrass her that had helped Bertie Lou to overcome all but a very tiny remnant of regret at leaving her old home, her family and friends.

And now—now she closed her eyes and hid the disappointment she feared they would reveal. Lila had fooled her. Her gay acceptance of Rod's departure had been a mask. She'd meant all the time to follow.

Bertie Lou experienced a moment of panic, picturing Lila in New York. The reputation of the city's immensity was appalling. To be harassed there—where she had no one to turn to—not that she had turned to anyone in Wayville, but at least she hadn't been without silent sympathy and understanding from some of the girls and her mother—was a fate unthinkable.

"Rod," she said in a fierce little whisper, and lifted the sullen fringe of her eyes to gaze, terrified, at him; "Rod, let's go back."

"Honey," Rod laughed at her and put an arm around her shoulders to draw her close. His own voice was none too steady. Not so many moons had passed since his adolescence and he was weighted with the responsibility of taking a wife to a strange city.

"We can't disappoint the people of New York," he told her gravely. "It's now blood like us that made that city what it is."

Bertie Lou smiled back at him, her moment of panic gone. What could Lila do if she did follow them? They ought to be able to avoid her in a place the size of New York. But what if they weren't? It had been Lila's parading of her memories that had given Bertie Lou more heart burning than any real fear of losing Rod's affection. There wouldn't be an audience for that in New York.

Security came back to Bertie Lou in the contact of Rod's arm, in his cheek laid over on her head. She relaxed against him more comfortably and reached up to pull off her hat. Rod rubbed his cheek on her hair "Soft as corn silk," he thought, with think of us? Everyone knows the names of the best hotels there."

Rod paused over cutting off a bite of roast chicken. "Don't you think we'd better find a cheaper one?" he asked, a little anxiously.

Bertie Lou frowned slightly. "We've got to make a good impression on the Frasers," she said impatiently.

"I don't see why. What would be the use of trying to run a bluff on Tom?"

"It isn't a question of running a bluff," Bertie Lou told him, lowering her voice so the couple at the next table could not hear. "It's a matter of standards. What you choose for yourself is the measure other people will have of you. You expect to get a raise some day, don't you?"

She stopped and waited. Rod nodded. "Well, if Tom sees that you're the sort of man who demands a lot out of him, he'll know he has to give it to you or lose you."

"But I'm not worth anything to him," Rod expostulated.

"You will be," Bertie Lou answered shortly. "We'll go to a first class hotel."

"And save money just like we did in Wayville?"

"Don't be sarcastic, please. We'll find an apartment in a day or so. But Tom and Molly will always remember that we aren't licks. It's smart, you know, to go to a good hotel. It won't break us to stay at one for just a couple of days and you couldn't have a better investment."

Rod gave in.

Molly lifted her eyebrows in a surprise when Bertie Lou telephoned and gave her the name of their hotel. Molly was not a Wayville girl. She hadn't understood from Tom that either Bertie Lou's or Rod's family was well to do. But she supposed that must be the case. She told Bertie Lou very cordially that she would be over within an hour.

Bertie Lou was waiting for her downstairs. After all, it might be just as well if Molly didn't see their room, she thought. Somehow it didn't quite come up to the glory of the lobby. The rates were high, higher than she'd expected.

"I suppose you want to rush right over to Fifth Avenue and get some clothes," Molly gurgled, after one glance at Bertie Lou's costume.

Molly was wearing a fur-trimmed coat. Bertie Lou became conscious of her summer apparel. Molly was wearing a fall suit and a fox fur.

"I'm dying to go shopping," she confessed; "but Rod wants to get settled as soon as possible. I think I'd better find an apartment so we can send for our furniture before I spend any time on myself."

Molly assumed a superior air. "But my dear," she began, "you can't go about New York in a summer outfit at this time of year. You'd make a wrong impression wherever you went. And of course you want to look at apartments on the upper East Side."

Bertie Lou gathered from her tone that the upper East Side was a part of town in which it was not desirable to make wrong impressions. But a doubt of the wisdom she'd been so sure of on the train assailed her. It looked as if one could err on the side of making impressions that were too good. If rentals in the upper East Side were anything like the rates of the hotel.

"Oh, I don't know," she said nonchalantly. "We rather think we'll try to live within Rod's income."

"Then you'd better go up to the Bronx unless you want to live in a cupboard," Molly advised. "But in any case you've got to have some clothes. I'll take you to my favorite shop."

Bertie Lou felt sunk. If she refused Molly might guess that she preferred to wait and look around for the best values. It would look cheap after the gesture they'd made in the selection of a hotel.

"Maybe I could spare time to pick up a sports coat," she said after a little quick thinking. Sports coats ought to be fairly inexpensive in any shop.

"By the way," she exclaimed as they moved toward the door, "Lila says she's coming to visit you."

The words came lightly, but Bertie Lou waited nervously for the answer. The idea that Lila might have made it up to her, if she had it would be nice to know it. (To Be Continued)

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL SPEAKS
Attorney-General Reynolds in his public address of last week while claiming that public utility rates in Wisconsin were excessive, admitting that during this period of excessive rates the power to correct abuses was in the hands of his political faction who have done nothing of a practical nature to relieve people from the claimed excessive burden, asserted that the unfortunate result was brought about by the fact that the utilities were represented by well paid and talented men and the public by inexperienced and oftentimes underpaid city attorneys.
This is true but only a fraction of the truth. The attorneys representing the public in these hearings merely put in the evidence, they cannot make it. They are neither accountants nor engineers, neither able nor qualified to examine the details of a bookkeeping system nor appraise the value of public utility plants. They are but a weak link in a chain that hasn't one strong one.
The blame is not properly to be put upon them. They have done the best they could under the circumstances. The blame is directly traceable to the government of the state of Wisconsin either in knowing of the unequal contest going on or for its ignorance in not knowing so plain a fact. Is it not one of the primary purposes of government to take suitable steps and provide competent persons so that the rights of all the people will be adequately protected?
The great combinations that have taken place in the public utility field have within them the seeds of good to the people if controlled and regulated by a competent government in an intelligent and understanding fashion; have within them too the seeds of evil when controlled or regulated by those who take no steps to protect the people but care only to talk about it from the political platform.
The rate at which utility service shall be fixed is not a political question. It contains too many elements, an examination of too many facts, an understanding of too many details. It is a question to be settled by the government, as it has a right to settle it, but upon a close and thorough study of the situation in each municipality because the deciding factors are seldom the same in any two places.
The Post-Crescent thinks it was entirely right in its position, either that the Progressives brought up the public utility rate question merely to provide pepper for their political sauce or that, in knowledge that the conditions they charge had existed for a great many years, they were woefully careless in not exercising the power of government in their hands to correct them. It is strange that this condition could have existed for so many years and not be discovered and presented to the public until it was time for someone to run for office.
Did the hand that reached for the pepper pick up the garlic instead?

THE CHANGING WORLD
A veteran Omaha barber, who once had 250 shaving stumps standing in shining array on his shop shelves, glorious with their gilt scrolls and the lettered names of their owners, now has only 16. Here brethren, is one of the most epochal changes of a mutalib world. That miserable old guard of 16, be it added, is stuck into a dark corner, and only four of the cups are still used.
The safety razor, which has done so much to change the face of civilization may have something to do with it. But the barber bluntly explains: "It used to be that every customer had to have his own mug, or he thought he would."

get barber's itch. Now they don't have mugs, and there isn't any more itch than there ever was. Sanitary conditions now are improved, though."
Indeed they are! Especially since women invaded the barber shops. Our civilization is built mainly on sanitation.

ANOTHER CONSOLIDATION
If the problem of Alsace-Lorraine has ceased to be a disturbing element in Europe it by no means follows that another situation with all the potentialities of strife has not taken its place.
Austria wants to join the German republic. It is thought that France most of all, although there may be others equally as interested, does not care to see the amalgamation. Any change in the balance of strength of any European nation is generally looked upon with great concern because however much men look to the future they are held by memory to the past.
The real cause of the desire of Austria may be put upon the World War treaties. Austria was hit too hard. It lost too much. It found itself after the war a nation entirely out of balance. It has a metropolis for forty millions of population but it only had something like ten millions left. Part of the necessary raw materials to keep its industries going had been taken from it in its loss of territory. The Austrians have been uncomplaining. They have not whimpered. They have worked hard and diligently to try to get their country into balance, to provide employment and a living fairly for all. They have not succeeded very well. Their failure of success may be properly attributed to causes entirely beyond their control or the control of any human agency. It is not unnatural in such a situation to wish to join the German republic. Austrians are Germans.

If a harm seemingly results to some other nation by two German peoples joining forces is it not merely a natural harm, one that comes from a condition that cannot be avoided? The rights of Austria must be judged with an understanding form of justice. The future of Germany is not wrapt up, as formerly, in a medieval war machine but in a republic, and republics have not generally been known to carry scareheads about "me and Gott" nor make a practice of sabre-rattling.
How far will France and Great Britain go to prevent the union? To what extent will the terms of the treaty of Versailles forbidding it be insisted upon? It is not unlikely that the passage of the years and the confidence that grows among nations in the absence of a belligerent spirit, will do more to answer the problem than anything else. So long as Austria continues in her unfortunate plight the desire for assistance through union will remain unabated.

WEAK HEART AND FLABBY MORALE
It seems still the way of folk who do not understand to refer to lung tuberculosis, if it is in their own family, as "weak lungs" although the lungs of persons ill of tuberculosis are usually as strong, often indeed stronger than the lungs of persons who have no tuberculosis. I recall a striking instance—a group of 40 young men who underwent a physical examination. One of them stood out by reason of his fine physique and his phenomenal chest expansion—he could expand his chest over five inches, whereas most of the young men had just normal chest expansions, around two inches. This phenomenon, however, was the only one of the group who had tuberculosis and to his surprise and indignation he was rejected. Being a "physical culture" enthusiast he just naturally scorned the doctor's advice, for all the plausible "nature" healers who advertise in the magazines of the "physical culture" cult in the assurance that regular or "allopathic" doctors know nothing but pills. On a strenuous regimen of exercise, including even deep breathing stunts, of course the unfortunate youth did not last long, but he did manage to get a testimonial or two published before he lost interest in the campaign the mail order and short cut healers were waging to curb the "doctors' trust."

"Weak kidneys" is the vague term employed by some people to signify a mere fancy that they may be suffering with the kidneys, by others to signify bed wetting in children, and by still others to signify any disturbance of the function of the bladder.

Weak nerves, weak stomach, female weakness, weak ankles, weak eyes, and weak heart, are all popular fancies, but never weak brain or weak mind. That's the queer part of it—folk who are willing, nay, eager, to be told by Tom, Dick or a doctor they have "weak nerves" or "weak heart" are not indignant if anybody hints that their real weakness is in the mind.

How often growing boys and girls have this purely fictitious concept of "weak heart" wished on them by misguided parents and the error confirmed or sanctified by the complacent opinion or ready acquiescence of the family doctor. It doesn't take the youngsters with the spurious "weak heart" long to learn how to utilize the concept as a means of evading tasks and gaining favors. These youngsters with "weak heart" can play football, baseball, tennis or whatever appeals to them, but, oh, dear, they must not run or jump or anything rough like that in the gymnasium class—no, they must be excused from all effort.

It is a most deplorable handicap for any child, this fake notion of "weak heart" without the slightest sign of heart disease. Such a child is pretty certain to develop into a neurotic, an abnormal type, when he or she grows up.

If a child's heart is really weak, it will be weak to be sure. On the other hand, heart disease is not necessarily a bar to exercise. If the heart is not diseased, then it can't be weak in any other sense. I mean there is no reason to assume that a child's heart is too weak for any activity the child's arms or legs may have the will to engage in, in the absence of a positive diagnosis of heart disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
How to Cure Cough
I noticed at one time you wrote on how to cure cough. I have a daughter 15 who received a slip at school from the Dr. and it said moderate therapy and to see her own Dr. and I remembered you said about all the Drs. gave was iodine and if anyone sent to you you would tell about how much. (S. G. R.)
Answer: You have it confused. I said that the treatment of cough is strictly a matter for the patient's own physician, and no one else can manage it safely. I said the prevention of cough in school children is a simple matter which any parent may manage. Give every school child once a week one drop of tincture of iodine in a glassful of water. Or adopt for household use iodized salt in the place of ordinary salt. Or employ both of these preventive measures if you live in a region where cough is prevalent. Your daughter should have the benefit of medical care, just as the school doctor advised.

Prevention of Typhoid
I have been informed there is in use in foreign countries where typhoid is prevalent, a remedy which, when taken internally, will prevent typhoid. Can you give me the name of this invaluable remedy? (A. B.)
Answer: I have no knowledge of such a remedy. The only reliable prevention against typhoid is immunization by means of the typhoid vaccine injections—or antityphoid "vaccination" such as protected our expeditionary forces in France during the war. Any physician, or your municipal health department, is prepared to administer this. (Copyright 1928 by John F. Dille Co.)

THE WORK OF THE BUREAU OF STANDARDS
Washington, D. C. — Affecting as it does the food every American fills in his teeth, the house he lives in, the car he drives, and not only accomplishing certain obvious results, but acting as an educating factor of the highest type, the Bureau of Standards is one of those branches of the Government which cannot be described alone in terms of equipment, personnel, and annual report.

There may be many an average citizen who does not comprehend and therefore appreciate the work done by the scientists who are in the Bureau, but there are few industries which do not profit by their conclusions, and ask for their advice.

Organized on a system which permits the maximum of cooperation, the Bureau of Standards in the solving of baffling problems, makes invaluable contributions to the march of civilization, and stimulates such work among others, quickening scientific thought.

At the principal laboratories located on a forty-three acre tract in Washington is an amazing collection of equipment. Because the theories and hypotheses are not sufficient, there are provided scientific mills and plants. In these, textiles, rubber, metals, clay products, glass, chemicals, sugar, pulp and paper and other commodities are produced experimentally by means which can be controlled at every point for measurements of comparisons to be made.

At this place now being crowded by the city and its headquaters, and vibrations but selected or inally because of its isolation, are the carefully guarded standard custody of which requires research and investigation. More precious than jewels, cotton batting or velvet in elaborate boxes is not sufficient to protect these standards. Standard tells are kept in oil, meter and kilogram standards in a special vault, and the clock accurate to a fraction of a second in a month is in another vault, this one underground. Other standards must be protected from light, moisture, or shock.

There are laboratories unique in their equipment in which among others electricity, radio, optics, and photography are bared of their secrets.

CAN NOT ACCEPT ALL PROBLEMS
Since two-thirds of the work done by the Bureau is for the Government it is impossible for it to conduct all the tests that are requested making certain requirements necessary for the acceptance of problems.

It seems apparent that industries appreciate the value of the work for many maintain research associates at the Bureau. There are now sixty-five of them working under its rules with the supervision and advice of the staff. Their discoveries are available to everyone.

Experts go there for consultation, creating an exchange of ideas that is valuable. Much service is accomplished by correspondence. More formal relations are maintained with scientific and professional societies, representatives of the Government serving on committees of these organizations. Leading committees of scientific investigation of this country and of others cooperate with the group in Washington and more than 900 experts act in an advisory capacity.

In some special instances where it is not practical to create a plant for production at the headquarters out on Connecticut Avenue, the government men cooperate with industry by furnishing a scientific staff for investigation and laboratory facilities.

The value of much of the work done by these curious men who investigate the why and wherefore of anything can be calculated in dollars and cents. It has been estimated that the work in ceramics saved one State more than the entire cost of the Bureau since it began operation. Incidentally the development of clay products has made it possible for the United States to compete with other nations in this field.

This is not the only case in which returns have been many times the cost of the work. By discovering that certain kinds of tires reduced power and by recommending the use of those which do not waste gasoline $40,000,000 is saved each year. The amount of gasoline which was formerly lost in crude oil is now produced and can be valued at $100,000,000 annually. Improvements made in brake lining have saved not only $15,000,000 but lives and property as well.

Waiting for concrete to harden was a needless expense, government experts found. A means of speeding it up was devised, the annual value of which can not be estimated.

SIMPLIFICATION AIDS INDUSTRY
In its campaign for simplification a natural outgrowth of the standardization which has been found to be the most important factor in industry, the layman as well as the specialists sees results. Instead of seven-eighths lengths in bedsteads, spring, and mattresses there are now four. Nine type of milk bottles replace forty-nine. Twelve standard sizes of bolts replace seventy-eight, and 160 varieties of hotel chinaware, 700. There are no longer sixty-six staple sizes of brick, but four, saving annually in paving brick alone $1,000,000. Other products in which simplification has taken place are sheet steel, range-bolts, builders hardware, inquiry, purchase order, and invoice forms.

See-Sawing On Broadway

New York — When the big liners from Europe arrive in flocks, passengers often are held for hours on the piers until the customs inspectors can get around to them. The situation is "meat for the ship news reporters and camera men."

Months ago Gangland's guns barked into the face of Frankie Yale as he drove his automobile along a city street. It was Gangland, silencing one of its own citizens, and in affairs like this the police seem to be altogether unnecessary.

Now and then in the newspapers are stories saying that "the murderers are known, arrests are imminent and evidence necessary for their indictment is being gathered."

If no arrests ever were made for Frankie Yale's murder it wouldn't be the first time Gangland has exercised its swift and bloody office undeterred. It is quaint and curious way Gangland has—and it almost seems as if the underworld had some sort of treaty with the police whereby these things could be consummated.

Gangland lives more or less by a code of its own — and a rigid code, too. There are boundary lines, strictly drawn, carefully watched. There are unwritten restrictions about Gangland's women. There are transactions Gangland forbids. The transgressor pays with life.

The tulip tree is one of the most beautiful of our native trees. It is a member of the magnolia family and is one of the few trees which are true to their name.

The wood works well. Does not split easily when nailed, and holds nails exceptionally well. It is used largely for planning mill products including sash, doors, finish and so on, and for furniture, boxes and veneer. It is particularly suitable for products that are to be painted or enameled.

The large, clear round logs are well adapted to the manufacture of rotary veneer which is used extensively in built up panels for finishing, furniture, piano cases and various forms of cabinet wood.

The stand of tulip tree has been roughly estimated at one of three-fourths billion board feet of which probably 75 per cent is in the states of West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Virginia. More than one-half of the present stand is virgin timber.

FARMERS FINDING SUCCESS IN FEEDING WHITE CLOVER

CLOVER IS EASY TO HARVEST AND THERE IS LITTLE WASTE

Trio of Outagamie-co Agriculturists Tell About Their Experiences

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

John Taege, Walter H. Wieckert, route 4, and Gust J. Henke, route 5, are enthusiastic users of sweet clover as pasture for dairy cattle, horses and hogs, and as silage for cattle. They have been using clover as exclusive pasture for several years and silage the past two years. As these men are dairymen on a large scale and are naturally interested in the discovery of the cheapest and best feeds for farm animals, their experience with sweet clover may be invaluable to other dairymen.

As soon as Mr. Taege had exhausted his supply of corn silage last spring, he began feeding sweet clover silage which was underneath the corn silage in his silo. Before he cut his corn last fall he had been feeding from the same crop of sweet clover silage. This summer, Mr. Taege cut 5 1/2 acres of sweet clover at about the time his last year's supply of sweet clover silage was gone, and with the product filled 25 feet of a 14 foot by 40 foot silo. As soon as he filled the silo this summer, he began feeding new silage to his cattle. In these trials extending over two years, Mr. Taege has reached the conclusion, that as a producer of milk, sweet clover silage is at least the equal of fodder corn silage or silage made from cornstalks without the ears. By covering the surface of the silage with a canvas, he prevents fermentation or the moulding of the upper layer of silage.

The advantages of making silage of sweet clover over making hay, are (1) Sweet clover can be mowed in any kind of weather and put into the silo which is not possible in the case of making hay. (2) Cattle eat all the sweet clover silage but in the case of hay they reject the coarse, woody stems. (3) The sweet clover leaves, which are the most valuable part of the plant are saved in the silage and lost in hay-making. (4) Sweet clover occupies less space in the silo than it does in the hay mow. (5) When sweet clover is turned into silage all danger of loss in the field and in the mow is removed.

This is only the second year that Mr. Taege has experimented with sweet clover silage but he has prepared to fill his silo next summer with sweet clover. In order to have a bottom to his sweet clover and to have feed in the field after the sweet clover is cut, Mr. Taege sows timothy with his sweet clover. He uses clover and timothy pasture. Mr. Wieckert says that for farm animals, he likes sweet clover pasture better than any other pasture he has ever tried. Since beginning to use sweet clover, Mr. Wieckert has had a steady flow of milk during the summer and has never had a case of bloat in his herd. His horses on this kind of pasture get no grain and do well on the pasture as their only feed.

As an example of the abundance of feed Mr. Wieckert gets from his sweet clover, it may be stated that he now has 32 head of cattle, 8 horses and 25 hogs on a 20 field of sweet clover in which the pasture grew a foot tall after a nurse crop of oats was cut and removed. The pasture is as fresh, palatable and nourishing as spring pasture.

Although Mr. Wieckert put a large quantity of sweet clover in one of his silos last season, and used a part of it directly afterward, he has had so much sweet clover pasture this season that he has not used all of his silage.

Sweet clover silage as a feed for farm animals is next in value to corn silage, according to Mr. Wieckert. "If a dairyman needs silage for fall feeding there is no better way of getting a supply than to put a field of sweet clover into the silo," said Mr. Wieckert.

If the ordinary growth of a new seeding of sweet clover has been limited by a heavy, lodged nurse crop, Mr. Wieckert does not fall pasturing, on account of the danger of winter-killing.

As Mr. Wieckert cuts his sweet clover for the silo with a mower, he does not have to wait for hay weather or as might be the case if he used a binder, or if he made hay of the sweet clover.

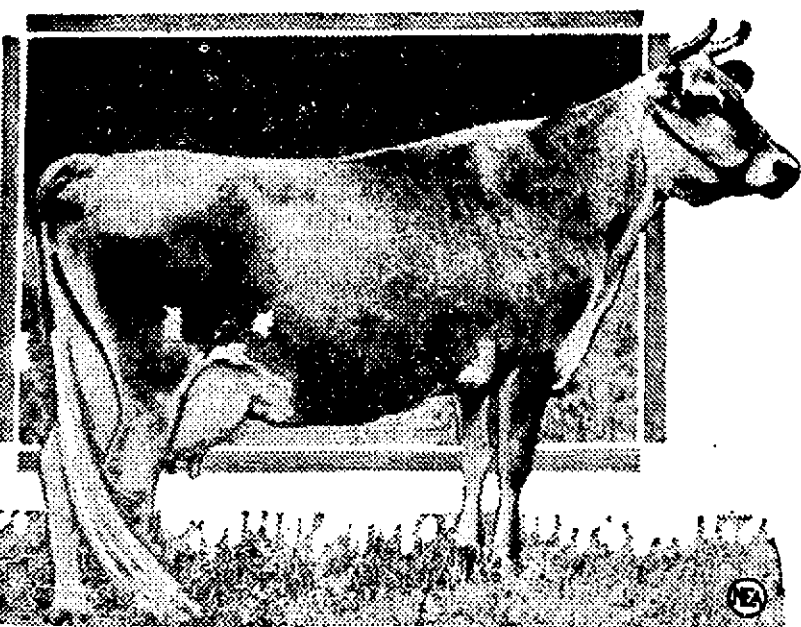

This season Mr. Henke the other of the trio of sweet clover enthusiasts in the vicinity, cut 2 acres of sweet clover with a binder and filled 35 feet of a 12 foot by 40 foot silo with the product of the field. As he was short of pasture, Mr. Henke began feeding the silage as soon as the field was cut and he has been at it ever since. Up to the time he began silo filling, he had 22 cattle and 25 hogs on 10 acres of sweet clover. The silage supplied the balance of the feed needed. He is now saving a field of alfalfa for hay that he intended to use for all pasture by feeding the sweet clover silage. Mr. Henke has 15 feet of silage left. When his corn crop is ready to cut, it will go into the silo on top of the remaining part of the sweet clover.

"If my cattle had refused to eat sweet clover silage this season after the sweet clover pasture was gone, as some farmers say cattle do, they would have starved, as I had no other home grown feed for them," said Mr. Henke, but they preferred the sweet clover silage to any other feed he had. "Silage of feed and hay on this small field of milk, I think the sweet clover silage equal to fodder corn silage or better."

"It is less work to put sweet clover into a silo than to make hay of it," continued Mr. Henke. In filling the silo with sweet clover my work is not dependent on fair weather. All the leaves are saved, if the sweet clover does not grow, the large leaves are rejected by a crop of sweet clover. Hay is saved for some other use and very small space is required if the sweet clover is cut in a silo."

FARMS FIND WAY TO BEAT HAY SHORTAGE

Black Creek Man Feeds Cattle Despite Winter-killed Alfalfa

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Black Creek—George I. Sussman, of this place proved in one case at least this season that "Necessity is the mother of invention." His proof originated and was conducted in the way described below.

Last spring Mr. Sussman discovered that his fields of alfalfa had winter-killed and that he was faced with the prospect of an extreme shortage of hay for his farm animals.

To make the best of a condition discouraging to dairymen Mr. Sussman lost no time but, taking an inventory of his loss, he conceived the plan of planting an emergency hay crop on his worst looking alfalfa field.

He selected for his seed a mixture of soy beans and sweet clover. He sowed the seed with a drill about corn planting time in a ten acre field. The crop has matured and is now ready for cutting. It is one of the best looking hay crops that "old timers" ever saw. The estimate yield of the field is three tons to the acre.

Of soybean hay G. C. Humphrey and E. B. Morrison say in a special circular issued by the college of agriculture, "Wisconsin farmers have learned in recent years the high value of soybean hay for dairy cows. Soybean hay is well liked by cows and it furnishes as much protein in 100 pounds as does alfalfa. If clover or alfalfa winterkill, soybeans will meet the emergency and provide an excellent legume hay the same season. There is, therefore, usually no real excuse for any dairyman not providing plenty of legume hay for his dairy cows."

These men say of sweet clover as pasture, "Sweet clover is very satisfactory as pasture, especially during the months of July and August. The returns from milk speak highly for this pasture crop."

"It is very easy to go beyond what these men say and to add that if sweet clover can be cured it makes a good hay crop."

GREENVILLE 4-H CLUB SUCCESSFUL AT FAIR

The members of the Wideawake Forward, 4-H club, of school district No. 7, town of Greenville, were very successful in display of their projects at the Seymour fair.

For instance, the demonstration team in baking took the second premium and the canning team took third premium.

In the individual competition, Evelyn Reinke took first premium on canned raspberries, and cooked rhubarb.

Vera Schroeder took first premium on girls' house dress, and first on white bread, graham muffins, and plain muffins, and second on graham bread and baking powder biscuits.

Belle Reinke took first premium on patch, and third and under garments.

Eleanor Schroeder took first on button holes and made-over projects. Emory Schutler took first place on Holstein calf.

The local leader of the club is Mrs. John Schoettler.

SEEK DIRECTOR FOR COUNTY CLUB WORK

Women Believe Attention Should Be Given to Their Home Activities

Five hundred women of Outagamie who are members of clubs in Home Economics and who are intensely interested in the welfare of the girls of the county are uniting and directing their combined powers in a direct line for the purpose of obtaining the constant services of a competent leader of work in Home Economics and of girls' 4-H Club activities.

As all lines of educational assistance offered by the extension service of the United States, Wisconsin and Outagamie county for the up-building of rural communities, up to this time, had for its goal bigger and better stables for horses and cattle, fatter pigs, more milk and larger yields of grain and the educational assistance sought by the women of Outagamie county has for its object better homes, healthier and better trained children, it is as easy to decide which of the two kinds of extension service is the more important as it is to make a choice of the home or stable, the child or the cow.

While the women heartily approve of all the improvements that have been made on the farms by their husbands and themselves under the leadership of the extensive service mentioned above, they are emphatic in the assertion that the time has come for the home and the children of the home to get a greater proportion of extension service than they have received in the past. "These women have decided that the only way they can get the service they are after is through the employment of trained leader in Home Economics throughout the year."

RAISES BEST CROP IN 23 YEARS OF FARMING

Grand Chute—Although Oswald Schneider, the champion brick cheese cheesemaker of the United States, has been on his present farm for the past 23 years, this season he has the best crops of small grain and corn he ever raised on the farm. He lately threshed 339 bushels of barley from 7 acres and 1,279 bushels of oats from 20 acres. Seven and one-half acres of his corn is loaded with big ears and is now nearly fit for the Grand Chute—Dan McGinnis, route 1, threshed 400 bushels of barley, Thursday, from 8 acres and 900 bushels of oats from 17 acres. Both barley and oats are of a very good quality. He has 15 acres of corn that was knocked down by the late storm. The crop is heavily eared but it will require three weeks more to ripen fully for the silo. He also has five acres of sugar beets from which he expects a very satisfactory yield.

By experimenting the past several years, Mr. McGinnis has developed a very satisfactory method of controlling or eradicating quack grass. His plans is to fall plow an infested field. In the following spring he disks the field lengthwise, crosswise and diagonally. The next process is using a spring tooth to rake the pieces of quack to the surface and the last process is to use a drag on the field to stir up the quack so that the sun can complete the killing. The grain that he sows in a field treated in this manner gets such a start of the quack still living that it soon smother the quack. On a field treated in this manner last spring, Mr. McGinnis got a yield of 50 bushels of oats to the acre and no signs of quack grass.

Grand Chute—As some of his clover, alfalfa and alfalfa winterkilled, Nick Ellenbecker, route 1, plowed one of his hay fields last spring and sowed it with a mixture of millet and oats. One Friday, he cut his five acre field of oats and millet and from it he expects to get 18 loads of emergency hay. The growth of millet is so heavy that it is difficult to mow. The field will balance his loss by winterkilling and give him all the hay he needs for horses and cattle.

Last Saturday, Mr. Ellenbecker threshed 733 bushels of oats from 16 acres. He has 18 acres of heavy well-eared corn that, although it was flattened by the storm, will be fit for the silo in another week's time, or ripe enough to cut for husking in two weeks.

There are only four tastes—sweet, bitter, salt, and acid.

Urge Dairymen To Study Principles Of Business

Madison—(P)—Wanted: Dairymen who have a thorough understanding of the principles and practices of good dairy manufacturing costs, by a thriving dairy industry in Wisconsin.

If a person likes the dairy business, believes that it is worth while, and feels it is meant for him to follow, there is a place for him, said experts at the college of agriculture. This year they will conduct a twelve weeks' winter dairy course in an effort to fill the individual's need for information and to aid the industry in furnishing men with dairy training.

A special booklet, titled "Winter Dairy Course," pointing out the opportunities of such a course, has been published by the "dairy" school. The student will learn about the chemical and bacteriological changes that take place in milk and its products as well as the relations they bear to industry. Information dealing with record keeping, milk plant accounts, dairy plant management and the marketing of milk and its products. In addition to this he will receive instruction in the various methods of testing milk and its products from the standpoint of quality and composition. Work in the nature of efficiency in plant operation, from the engineer's point of view, will also be covered in this course. Six weeks is the time estimated by instructors to cover this part of the course.

In the second six weeks instruction will be given in butter making, cheese making, ice-cream making and milk condensing. The subject matter of the course is to be covered in the lectures and this information is to be put into practical use in the laboratory or manufacturing rooms.

The following are some of the requirements for admission. Students should be at least 16 years of age and have a common school education. If possible, six months of practical training in a creamery, a cheese factory or some dairy manufacturing enterprise. No entrance examination will be required.

Suggestion of experience before entering this course was made by instructors who point to past records to show that experienced pupils make the most rapid advancement, are the best students and are best pleased with results of their work. Passing of an examination given at the end of the twelve weeks' course, and two seasons' experience in a creamery or cheese manufacturing plant are necessary for the student who wishes to obtain a dairy course certificate.

Tuition is free to residents of Wisconsin. The non-resident fee given for this special course as $62.33 which includes incidentals and laboratory fees.

LITTLE ACTIVITY IN STATE DAIRY MARKET

Buyers Unwilling to Purchase Butter Beyond Immediate Demand for Product

Madison—(P)—Butter and cheese markets were quiet throughout the state during the past week, with hog prices uneven, according to the weekly review of the department of markets.

Butter buyers showed little interest. Supplies were light but ample to the light demand. Most buyers were unwilling to purchase beyond immediate requirements. At the close of the week prices advanced 1.2 cent in all grades except the ungraded. Car market trading was slow. Cold storage holdings of butter at the four principal markets on August 30 amounted to 55,984,565 pounds as compared with 15,090,882 pounds on the same week day of last year. Butter prices are about 3 1-2 cents higher than last year.

Cheese production seems to be on a par with last year. Receipts at Wisconsin warehouse during weeks have shown little change from a year ago. Cold storage holdings of cheese at the four principal markets on August 30 amounted to 16,152,181 pounds as compared with 14,579,532 pounds on the same week day of last year. Cheese prices are 1-4 cent higher than last year.

The hog market was uneven during the week. There was a consistent widening of the price range on the basis of weight and a great deal of discrimination against hogs lacking in finish. Butlers scaling over 250 pounds closed 15 to 40c lower as compared with the close of the previous week, the heavier weights than grade light and medium weight hogs are unevenly 10 to 35c lower and packing sows show 40 to 50c price loss. Hog prices are about 25c higher than last year at this time.

Cattle are $2.45 and sheep $1.50 higher than last year at this time. One of the simplest details of fire prevention lies in cleaning up the woodlot to reduce the fire hazard.

The satisfying and economical fuel Ford Coke

Product of the Ford Motor Company

MANY people who have had a chance to compare Ford Coke with other fuels consider it the most satisfactory and economical fuel they can buy. And they have good reasons for that opinion.

Ford Coke is easy to burn. It needs attention but twice a day. It produces heat quickly. It burns without smoke or soot, and if you burn it correctly, with no clinkers.

The quality of Ford Coke is high and uniform. It must be, for the Ford Motor Company uses it. And to make certain it is dependable the Ford Motor Company makes Ford Coke in its own coke ovens, from coal mined in Ford-owned mines.

The price is another attractive feature of Ford Coke. Buy this better fuel now. Call up the nearest dealer and have him fill your bin.

Face Is But The Mirror Of The Mind

NATALIE THURSTON, beauty specialist, maintains that "Fascinating Potry" has advantages over "Sweet Sixteen" if the older woman takes the care of her personal grooming that she should.

"Blushing youth has no advantages over blushed-out maturity," Miss Thurston stated. "If you doubt it, hire yourself a front row table at any smart night club and see who rates the masculine attention."

Natalie Thurston

Sweet sixteen may win the dancing marathon. But when it comes to picking the woman men love to look at, Fascinating Forty gets the breaks.

"In my opinion there are more outstanding beauties between 30 and 40 than among girls under 21. Ethel Barrymore, Gloria Swanson, Mary Pickford, the Talmadge and the Gish sisters, all famous for feminine perfection, are well over 25.

"After all a face is but the mirror of a mind. The average woman does not begin to live until she is 30. After that, experience, plus the perfected cosmetics of this era, gives her a 60-40 advantage over youth. But the older woman must remember to make the most of her advantage. She really needs to be more careful of her grooming than the younger girl in her first blush of youth."

LUNCHEON—Onions in cream on toast, ham and potato salad, rye bread, lemonade.

DINNER—Fish baked in tomato sauce, rice timbales, creamed peppers, green tomato pie, milk, coffee.

GREEN TOMATO PIE

One and one-half pounds of green tomatoes, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup water, 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 cup seeded raisins, 1 baked pie shell.

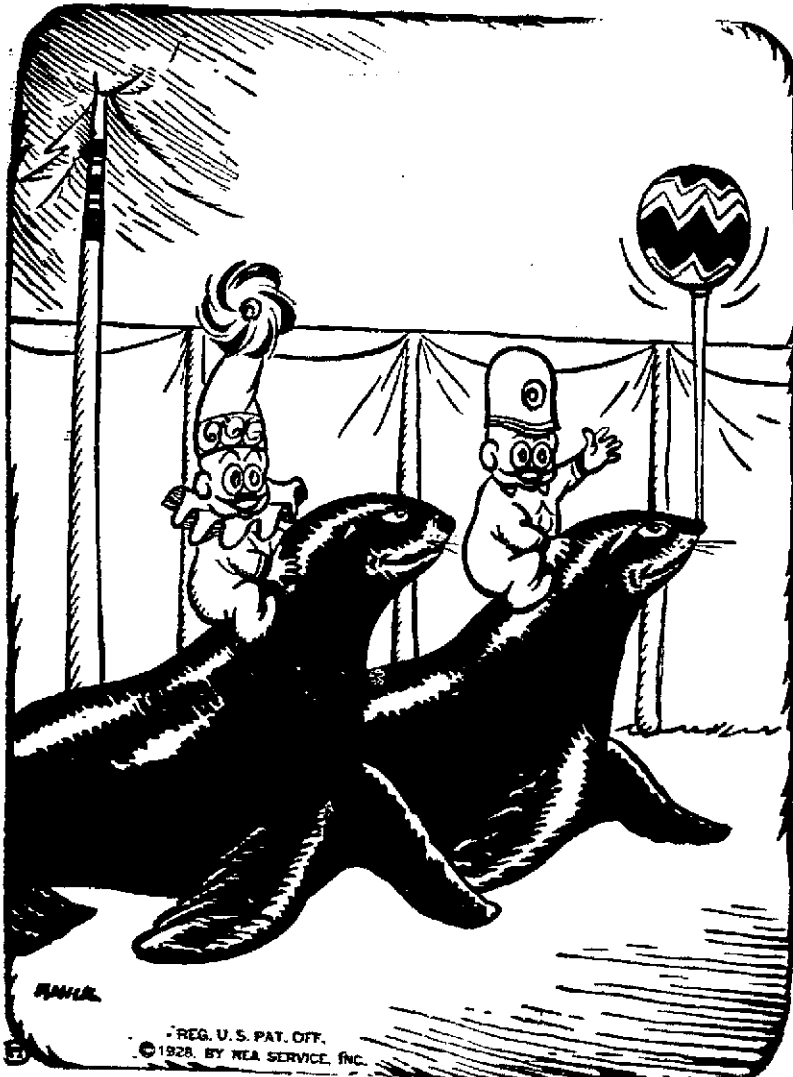

When making dough for pie shell, make half as much extra as would be required for an upper crust. About 1-1/2 cups flour will be needed.

Wash tomatoes and cut in slices. Make a syrup of water and sugar, add tomatoes, grated rind and juice of lemon and cinnamon. Cook until tomatoes are transparent but unbroken. Add raisins and cook until raisins are plump. Turn into a baked pie shell, arrange strips of dough to make a lattice top, and bake until top is brown.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tynymites were Indians brave and at the show, at night, they gave the little tots a wondrous treat with war-whoops, loud and long. They danced a while, and then they stood as close together as they could and sang a lot of notes, supposed to be an Indian song.

And then they brought an arrow out, and all the folks heard Scouty shout, "Now watch me shoot this rubber arrow at me Cowwies' head. 'Course Cowwies' stord right up, real same, and Scouty then took proper aim. His arrow flew, but it hit Cowwies on the heel instead.

This made the tots all laugh in glee. Then Cowwies cried, "Ow! he punched me!" He ran around in circles. Then he took a funny fall, and it seemed the shot had knocked him out, but soon he jumped right up to shout, "Don't worry! I am just fooling you. I am not hurt at all!"

The trainer then cried, "Come here quick. We're ready for another trick. The stunt will take just two of you, so hurry and decide which ones would like to play a part. This trick will be a work of art. It will be another riding stunt in which you'll risk your hide."

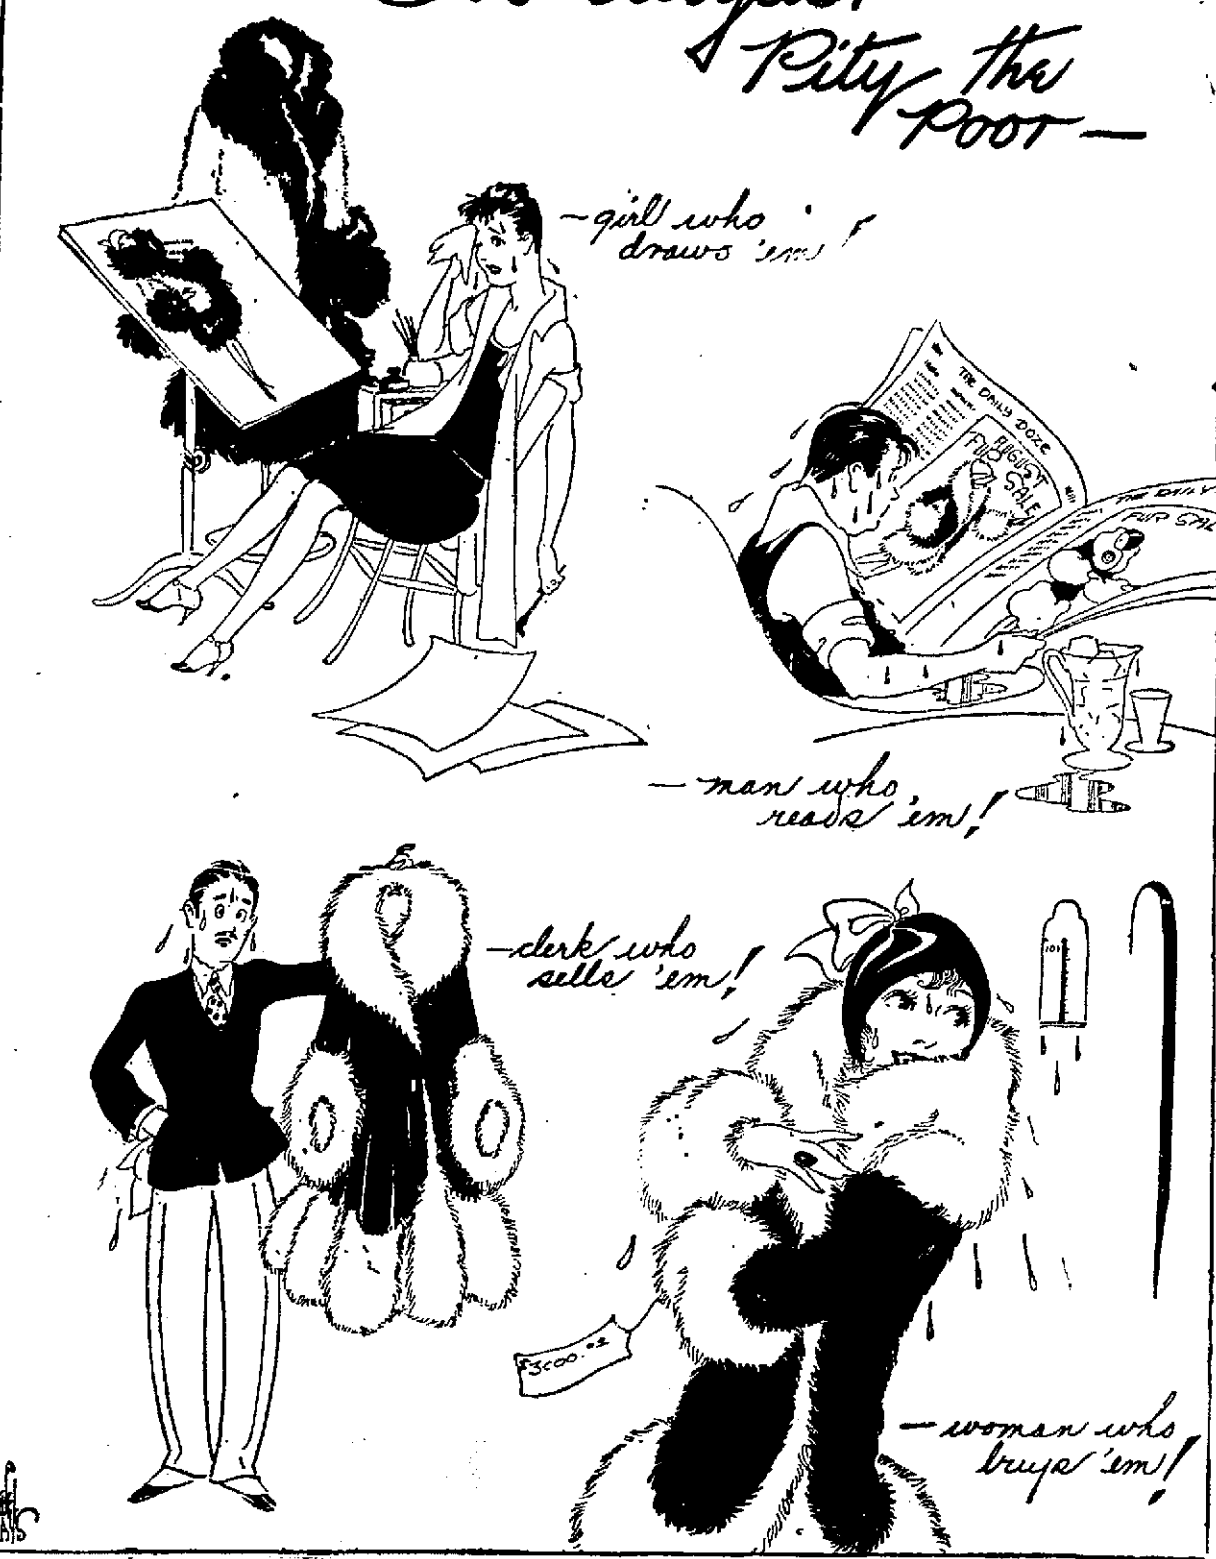

"Please count on me to help you out," the trainer then heard Cowwies shout. And Cowwies added, "I'll come, too. Don't think that I'm afraid." So, with the trainer, out they went, and shortly reached another tent, where plans for Mister Trainer's trick were very shortly made.

The next thing that brought forth a shout was when these two came riding out on two trained seals that waddled slow, and scooted long and loud. The trainer made his long whip crack, and followed them around the track. It made a very pleasing sight, and thrilled the circus crowd.

(Carp does some jumping stunts in the next story.)

Paul Poiret Shows New Skirts Longer, Fuller

BY ROSETTE

NEA Fashion Writer

PARIS—Women seem to have evolved in a strange fashion in regard to dress during the last fifteen years. They no longer seem to care much, if at any smart gathering, they meet two or three other women wearing the same dress. Had this happened before the war, a courtier would have had a very irate client to deal with.

The "modele a success," which means the model with the popular appeal, seems to be what many a woman looks for nowadays. That type seems to revel in the fact that she is immediately labeled as wearing the Lanvin dress or the Patou coat of the season.

If you question a smart woman about this she will shrug her shoulders and say that, after all, there is very difference in the world in the way of wearing a successful model. No two women look alike, and besides there is the question of hat, shoes, and so on. This may be right but the lack of the "exclusive feeling" seems to be one that should be guarded against.

THE POIRET COLLECTION

This was apparent at Paul Poiret's collection. His clientele is composed for the most part of women who do not want to look like anybody else. A Poiret gown is always interesting. It usually is about two seasons in advance of any other model. The woman who wears a Poiret creation there fore must be really to be a cynosure of all eyes wherever she goes.

The thing that strikes one most about the Paul Poiret collection is that, far from appearing extreme as they did three seasons ago, they are all wearable. Skirts are a trifle longer and fuller and bodices more fitting than anywhere else.

Long hip yokes on which wide skirts are gathered are the feature of many afternoon dresses, and lighter yokes than the rest of the gown are used on the bodices of others. These yokes form the sleeve in some cases and are quite a novel treatment.

No particular color dominates in this interesting collection. Light and dark blue, black, grey, green, brown all are used by Poiret. The evening dresses are very diversified, being made of lame, velvet and satins. One unusual evening gown is composed of a many-frilled and form-fitting bodice over which is placed a green shawl heavily embroidered in gold. This is draped tightly round the figure and tied at the back, after the manner of the Italian peasant women.

Many novel treatments of sleeves are to be noted in this house. Some of them are tight fitting as far as the elbow, where they flare out in the form of a biased frill. Others fit tightly from the wrist up and are finished off with tremendous gauntlet cuffs.

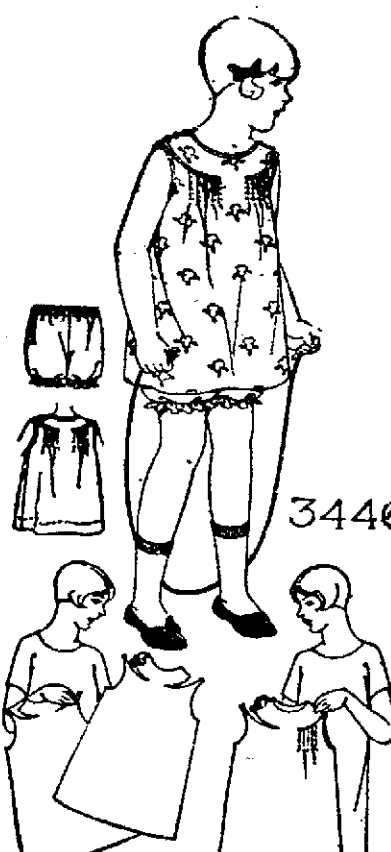

COUTURIER FOR YOUTH

Madame Jenny is known by the smart young French matrons as the creator of delightfully youthful looking dresses, and her collection includes a galaxy of such "petites robes" to choose from.

Most of her coats are either raglan-shaped or built on a yoke of some kind and practically all have tight-fitting collars finishing off in a variety of scarf-ends. Fur is used in a very masterly fashion as a trimming for afternoon coats, but here also collars are on the small side and close-fitting.

The princess style of dress dominates throughout but it is a delightfully modernized and youthful "princess" that surely will be very successful. Velvet and black satin seem to be the favorite mediums and ermine is often used as the relieving factor.

PLAY DRESS

DARLING OUTFIT

It is just the prettiest little bloomers dress imaginable, for chubby youngsters of 2, 4 and 6 years, made of dainty dainty in sprigged flower pattern, voile in orchid shade, daffodil yellow ermine, or flesh color, crepe de chine. For play, select candy striped cotton broadcloth, English print, chambray, gingham, or printed sateen. It's so simple! Two main parts to pattern, tucked front and back, with yoke effect. Bloomers have elastic inserted through casing to form frill. For the 4-year old, it only takes 1-2 yards of 27-inch material, with 1 yard of 27-inch for bloomers. Pattern No. 3446 price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly. In sending for the pattern, we suggest that you enclose 10 cents additional for copy of our Summer Fashion Magazine containing 200 attractive styles and articles regarding correct selection of models to make the individual appear at her best.

MOTHER TO BLAME FOR SELFISH CHILD

If children are selfish, are mothers to blame?

We keep talking about the thoughtless younger generation and wag our heads about the way we were made to walk the chalkmark when were were young, while all the time we are outdoing each other in making the younger generation what it is:

I overheard one mother tell another she hadn't had a trip anywhere for four years. I happened to know that her daughter had gone on a house party with enough finery and sports costumes and summer furs and what-not to have kept her mother at the seashore for two weeks and paid for her railroad tickets besides. The daughter has always overdressed and it was not her fault. It was her mother's own ambition to have her look smarter than her friends.

It begins with little things. For a child's own good, a mother should see that he accustoms himself to little sacrifices to make her comfortable. It is the best way to teach him unselfishness.

She may want him to have the one extra bit of cream on his pudding, but if he says "Don't you want it mother?" about one time out of two she would say, "Why, yes, I believe I will have it," and take it.

If she says invariably, "No, Jack. I want you to take it. I really don't wish it," can you blame Jack for gradually getting into the habit of expecting her to say that very thing and resenting it if she surprises him by accepting?

If there is just room in the car for one more and she says, "No, I have some letters to write—I wish you'd take Jack. He'd love to go, I know."

ing else matters." And he pulled her forcibly from the door into his arms.

NEXT. Crystal prepares to hunt a job.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS—

Dick was weaker than Tony. His anger melted. "Sorry, Tony. I apologize. But, Lord, you don't know what I've been through today!"

I told Mother and Dad that we were engaged and then I came over here to tell you what they said and found you'd simply disappeared. Of course I thought you were off with some other fellow and I've been wild.

"I was," Tony interrupted nonchalantly. But in her heart she was praying, "Oh, please, don't let him touch me now or I'll weaken! Please! Why does he have to be so heart-breakingly handsome?"

"What?" You were with another man?" Dick Talbot clenched his hands a vein on his forehead swelled suddenly and throbbed with angry blood. "The very day after we became engaged? And after all I've gone through for you today?"

"I didn't say definitely that I'd marry you," Tony reminded him coldly. "And heaven knows I'm not trying to steal that darling little boy."

"Tony!" Dick growled. "It's no quarrel, darling. I love you. No! What did they get out of it?"

1,000 Masons
At Picnic On Labor Day

FOR the first time in eight years a baseball team composed of DeMolay members of local and a baseball team composed of Masons at the annual Masonic picnic Labor day at Pierce park. George Packard was the umpire and the game was a tie to the last inning when the DeMolays rallied and won, 14 to 7.

Members of the DeMolay team were Volney and Vincent Burgess, Robert Kuntz, Carl Kuntz, Julian Bender, Roger Abraham, Harold Woehler, Alvin Woehler and Herman Schweger. Members of the Masonic team were Frank Schwandt, Walter Ingenthron, Walter Gresenz, Fred Agrell, Oshkosh, Glen Meidam, Louis Everlen, Cecil Fuminger, Edward Elias and Charles Maalis.

More than 1000 Masons from Appleton, Kaukauna, Menasha, Neenah, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac registered at the park for the picnic. Paper hats, horns and other novelties were presented to the Masons as they registered. Former members of Appleton lodges were invited to the affair. There were various contests, races and games for the children and horseshoe and tennis for the grown ups.

Those who worked on the various committees were: John Harriman, Harry Leith, Maurice Lewis, Gordon Carleton, N. C. Jacobson, James Forbes, Louis Brevlin, Frank Schwandt, William Tim, H. F. Hackworth, E. M. Gorrov, Charles Rumpf, Max E. Giese, W. F. Hardt, William Lyons and Carl Plash.

Walter Bridenhagen, William Bridenhagen, Sr., Francis Bridenhagen, Sturgeon Bay and Clement Hupke, Clintonville.

The marriage of Miss Alice Aldrich, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Aldrich, Houghton, Mich., and Dan A. Hardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hardt, Neenah, was solemnized of immediate relatives and close friends at the home of the bride's parents at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Rev. A. E. Fuell, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Houghton performed the ceremony.

The couple was attended by Miss Grace Richards of Houghton and Willard Henock of Milwaukee. After a short wedding trip they will reside at 106 E. Lawrence-st., Appleton.

Mrs. Hardt, a senior at Lawrence college, will continue her work at the college. Mr. Hardt, formerly head of the Lawrence college news service and assistant to President H. M. Wriston, is now employed in the sales and advertising department of the Neenah Paper company.

CARD PARTIES

Bridge, dice, plumpsack, schafkopf and cinch will be played at the first of the series of open card parties at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at St. Joseph hall. Mrs. Joseph Tonn and Mrs. Joseph Dorn will be in charge of the affair which is being given by circle No. 3 of Christian Mothers of St. Joseph church.

The first meeting of the year of Lady Elks will be at 8 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Elk hall. Cards will be played.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Litowich, 931 W. Elsie-st., announced the engagement of their daughter, Pearl, to Sidney H. Cohen, son of Mrs. S. Cohen, 1508 N. Morrison-st., at a dinner at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Litowich home. Thirty relatives of the two families were guests.

Married Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. William Konrad, Sr.

THE golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Konrad, Sr., 502 N. Durkee-st., will be observed Wednesday with a wedding breakfast for the members of the family and open house for friends of Mr. and Mrs. Konrad from 2:30 to 5 o'clock at the Konrad home.

Mr. and Mrs. Konrad were married 50 years ago in Appleton and have lived in this city ever since. Mr. Konrad, who is 74, also, was born in Syracuse, N. Y. and came to Appleton in 1875.

Miss Ermetta Dalton, Nicolet Blvd., Neenah, entertained 16 guests at luncheon and bridge in the gold room at the Conway hotel Saturday afternoon in honor of Misses Kathryn Pierce, Menasha, and Rigmar Jersild, Oshkosh. Miss Pierce will marry Roy Sund Sept. 15, and Miss Jersild will be married to Oliver Thompson, Neenah, some time during the month of September.

Bridge prizes were won by Miss Marguerite Pierce, Menasha; Miss Cornelia Hauser, Neenah; and Mrs. M. D. Dalton, Oshkosh. Guests prizes were given to Miss Kathryn Pierce

Mrs. John Brandt will be chairman of the party and she will be assisted by Mrs. Edward Knaack, Mrs. Clarence Latham, Mrs. Rheindold Krabe, Mrs. Henry Koester, Mrs. Paul Christen and Mrs. Andrew Schlitz.

The first meeting of Lady Eagles of the season will be at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at Appleton Women's club. Cards will follow a business session.

LODGE NEWS

A membership committee will be appointed at the regular meeting of Fraternal Order of Eagles at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at Eagle hall. The committee will work on plans for the meeting on Oct. 7 at which time Judge Thomas O'Donnell, a grand organization speaker, will address the Appleton lodge. A membership drive is being conducted in connection with the silver jubilee which will be held for three days in December celebrating the twenty-fifth year of the organization.

A party for members of the Auxiliary of the United Commercial Travelers and wives of members of United Commercial Travelers sometime in September was planned at the meeting of the Auxiliary Saturday night at Odd Fellow hall. Mrs. Leslie Pense will be chairman of the party. Twelve members were present at the meeting which was the first meeting of the season. Mrs. R. R. Cade presided.

A regular meeting of Deborah Rebekah lodge will be held at 7:45 Wednesday at Odd Fellow hall. Routine business is scheduled.

There will be a meeting of Waverly lodge, No. 51, Free and Accepted Masons at 7:30 Tuesday night at Masonic temple. Master mason degree will be conferred.

A business meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of Catholic Order of Foresters will be held at 7:45 Wednesday evening at Catholic home. The business session will be followed by a social hour.

Mrs. Burton Advises Women on Motherhood and Companionship

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness, and I will gladly reveal it to any married woman who will write me. Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 1536 Massachusetts Kansas City, Mo. Correspondence will be strictly confidential."

SMITH'S HOMERUN GIVES KAUKAUNA WIN OVER FONDY

Long Hit Scores Not Ahead of Him—Final Score is 3 to 1

Kaukauna—Les Smith, manager of Kaukauna ball team and home run king of the Fox River Valley league, slugged his hirelings to victory over Fond du Lac Monday afternoon at the Kaukauna Ball park when he put the ball over the right field fence with a man on the runways, putting Kaukauna on the top of a 3 to 1 score. This is the eighth home run of the season by Les Smith and he leads the league. The score was tied 1 and 1 in the seventh inning when Smith hit his home run. R. Smith singled just before the homer.

Fond du Lac led the Kawmen in the first frame and kept the lead until the fifth inning when Amedee drove Wenzel home. Abbott was going from second to third was tagged out.

Both pitchers threw good ball, Abbott allowing only seven hits and earning seven and Schram allowing six hits and striking out eleven men. Another feature of the game was a catch made by Moore, Kaw center fielder, when he ran over into the right field and caught a fly on a hard run. An error in the first inning by Amedee gave the Fondy men their chance to score and no other scores were made until the sixth inning when Kaukauna counted.

4,425 USE SWIM POOL IN AUGUST

Warmer Weather Past Month Brings Out Larger Attendance Than in July

Kaukauna—A total of 4,425 swimmers used the municipal swimming pool during August, according to a report in aid by J. Howard, attendance taker. This is 417 more swimmers than used the pool, in July. Of the total number 2,344 were girls and 1,870 were boys. Eighty two men took advantage of the open nights and 128 women used the pool on women's nights.

The average number of boys to use the pool was 160 while the average number of girls was 167. The largest number of girls to use the pool in one day was 198 and the lowest number was 151. For the boys the largest number for one day was 180 and the lowest number was 120. The largest number to use the pool in one day in July was 248. The daily average for the girls in July was 157 and the average for boys was 157.

The pool is open four nights a week two for men and two for women.

The win gives the leading team five victories and one loss. Members of the champion team are Manager A. Hoyman, A. Diedrick, A. Regenfuss, R. Vils, M. Miller, Hoffman, P. Dayton, A. Walter, and J. Nussheart.

WEATHER SPOILS CELEBRATION OF KAUKAUNA MOOSE

Rain and Cold Winds Keep Down Attendance at Two-day Picnic at Park

Kaukauna—Bad weather partially spoiled the large two day celebration sponsored by the Moose Sunday and Monday. Rain on Sunday and cool weather Monday kept many people from the celebration.

Philip LaFollette, James Patterson, James O'Connor, Antone Miller and Mayor Sullivan gave speeches before a large crowd at the park Monday afternoon. William Bay, president of the Kaukauna Trades and Labor council, was in charge of the speaker's program.

Philip LaFollette, speaking on farm problems, urged the people to elect officials who would help them and the farmer. He said that Kohler was not for the farmer and would vote against measures that would be of benefit to them. He said that women rush to sales because they expected bargains, and that if they expected good government they should rush to the polls and elect the right men in office to make good government possible. He told them to vote the LaFollette Progressive ticket.

He said big lumber barons got control of school property and made fortunes out of it. If that didn't happen the people wouldn't have to pay taxes on schools at the present time, he said. Mr. LaFollette, who was scheduled to speak in Kaukauna at 1:15 Monday afternoon, said he was delayed at Green Bay where he had to make a speech. He spoke at 4:15 Monday afternoon.

Although it rained during the early part of Sunday afternoon the band gave a concert in the band stand at LaFollette park and a large number of people attended. After the rain stopped about 3 o'clock several hundred people enjoyed the celebration. Kaukauna also played an Appleton ball team at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the local ball park, winning 5 to 4.

On Monday a parade was held but on account of the cool weather it was not very large. The parade proceeded over the Lakeview bridge and made a tour of the main streets on the north side of the river and then on the south side and ended up at the LaFollette park where the band played concerts. In the afternoon various speakers appeared and gave talks to about 500 people who had assembled there.

30 ANSWER FIRST CALL TO GRIDIRON

With 11 Lettermen Back in Fold, Kaw Football Prospects Look Good

Kaukauna—About 30 candidates for the high school football team turned out for the first practice of the season Saturday morning. Equipment had been given out Friday afternoon at the high school by Coach Elmer Ott and instructions given the squad. The first practice was held on the old municipal playgrounds in the rear of the library. Only callisthenics were given to "limber them up." Regular practice starts Tuesday afternoon. About 10 more members are expected to be out for the squad this week.

FIREMAN BURNS HAND ON FLAMING OILSTOVE

Kaukauna—Fireman Walter Stock received a bad burn on his right hand Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock carrying a burning oilstove out of the home of Claude R. Sch. 526 Dexter-st. after the fire department had been called to his home. The oil stove had exploded while attempting to carry the stove out. He spilled on his left leg and started fire. No other damage was done.

DONAHUE PLANS NEXT MEETING OF ROTARY

INTERURBAN LINE TO GREEN BAY IS NOW DISCONTINUED

Wisconsin Public Service Company Takes Off Last Car Saturday Night

Kaukauna—At 10:45 Saturday evening the Wisconsin Public Service company of Green Bay operated the last street car on its line between this city and Green Bay. The company recently was granted permission by the Wisconsin Railroad commission to remove its cars when it showed that it had been operating at a loss for several years.

While permission to take its cars off was granted several weeks ago the company continued to operate until after the Northeastern Wisconsin fair at De Pere last week. City officials granted permission to keep operating.

Now that the cars have stopped operating the company plans to tear up its tracks immediately so that the McCarty Construction company can start laying concrete on the end of Lawe-st that goes past the Holy Cross cemetery. The company expects to start work there as soon as it has completed grading Wisconsin-ave preparatory to paving that street also.

Removal of the Green Bay line marks the passing of Kaukauna's last electric interurban street car service. Some months ago the Wisconsin-Milwaukee Power company of Appleton took off its cars operating between this city and this. Kaukauna residents must now depend on busses or railroad trains to reach cities in any direction from here.

The old freight house and waiting station, located on Lawe-st, are being moved by C. Rosenthal to Highway 41 just north of Kaukauna. He bought them and intends to erect a lunch room near the highway.

BAG MILL WORKERS LEAVE FOR TEXAS

Mr. and Mrs. William Pahnke Start Sunday for New Home in Orange

Kaukauna—Mr. and Mrs. William Pahnke and family left Sunday for Orange, Texas, where Mr. Pahnke will start work in the bag factory that was moved there from Kaukauna a month ago. The Union Bag factory operated in Kaukauna for a number of years. Four local families will move with the mill. Mr. Pahnke will help assemble the machines in the new plant, and Gerald Brenzel, who left several weeks ago to start the plant, will leave for Vancouver, Wash., as soon as he can put the new plant into operation. He will be resident agent at Vancouver for that concern.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Berndt and Mr. and Mrs. J. Neissling will leave for Orange Thursday or Friday of this week to work in the new mill. Mr. Berndt will be the superintendent of the new factory.

Motorist Fined—Kaukauna—Walker Straton, motorist of Oshkosh, paid a fine and costs amounting to $5.75 to Justice of Peace N. Schwin for failing to stop at an arterial Saturday. He was arrested by Motorcycle officer A. Miller.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN COLLISION ON HIGHWAY

Hilbert—Undersheiff J. B. Dierich of Calumet and Deputy Sheriff, Harry Jobelius, were called to the scene of a collision at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Luelfoff cheese factory corner on Highway 57, one and a quarter miles north of Hilbert. The drivers of cars were Theodore Bauer of St. John, driving a coach with five occupants, coming from the north, and Thomas Evans of 455 Virginia-st, Milwaukee, whose touring car also had four or five occupants of the latter two were slightly injured. Both cars were taken to the Ray Anlin garage for repairs. The Milwaukee car came from the East.

POLA NEGRI DOES LIFE AND LOVES OF RACHEL

The life and loves of the great Rachel, celebrated actress of the last century, have been translated to the screen in Pola Negri's latest Paramount production "Loves of an Actress," coming to Fischer's Appleton Theatre Thursday and Friday.

The story is an authentic revelation of the romances of the famed tragedienne, and was written by Ernest Vachon, Hungarian playwright, the adaptation and direction being credited to Rowland V. Lee, who has directed some of Miss Negri's most successful vehicles.

Rachel was often called the most romantic adventuress of the 19th century, and her own memoirs have revealed several sensational and notorious affairs with powerful leaders of the times.

Society accepted her because of her fame as a dramatic actress. The world toasted her. Her sudden death was the background of passion. Then a young and unsophisticated man appeared and swept the actress off her feet, he being her first real love.

One of the arduous sutters threatened ruin for both Rachel and her new lover, leaving Rachel in a quandary. How she settles the problem forms one of the amazing and dramatic scenes in the Paramount picture.

Miss Negri has been ably cast in the title role, and the others who assist her are Paul Lukas, Nils Asther, Nigel de Brulier, Philip Strange, Richard Tucker, Mary McAlister and Helen Giera.

"OH, KAY!" IS O. K.

"Oh, Kay!" is O. K.!

Mirth that fairly shook the Elite theatre at the first local showing of its latest Colleen Moore picture last week, provided ample evidence that "Oh, Kay!" is one of the funniest comedies to reach the screen in months, and after watching six reels of hilarious humor, the audience went home still chuckling.

"Oh, Kay!" which is showing for the last times today and Wednesday is frankly a farce, having been adapted for motion picture purposes from the musical comedy of the same name. It has been made all the more laughable in the transition, and the presence of Colleen's part personality in the stellar role is responsible for the majority of the humor. Although Colleen has probably had more successful comedies than any other feminine star, "Oh, Kay!" has topped them all, and takes its place with the best humor the screen has produced.

LONG DISTANCE LAUGHS

"Oh Kay!" covers a lot of territory, opening in England, ending in Long Island, and including a considerable portion of the intervening salt water. Colleen, as "Kay," an independent young member of the British peerage goes sailing to forget her approaching marriage to a sour-faced nobleman. In a spectacular storm she is rescued by a rumship, bound for America, and is taken along. Complications arise when she becomes involved in the activities of the smugglers in storing the cargo in a supposed empty mansion. The manner in which Kay eludes a revenue officer by pretending to be married to the young owner of the Long Island estate, and then insists that she is a maid-servant, wife of the butler, when the young man's fiancée discovers that she has spent the night in the house, provides a succession of mirthful situations that seldom have been surpassed.

LEGION COUNCIL TO MEET IN LITTLE CHUTE

Convention activities and the change in the state department constitution which permits election of post officers at the first meeting in September were discussed by members of Outagamie-co council of the American legion at a meeting Thursday night at the Hammen hotel, Little Chute. The posts formerly elected officers at the first meeting in October.

The legionaires also talked over post programs for Armistice day, Nov. 11, and considered appointment of a county chairman.

KOCH AGAIN IS FIRST TO GET HUNT LICENSE

A. G. Koch, register of deeds, again has the honor of getting the first hunting license issued this year in Outagamie-co. Mr. Koch has received the first license annually for more than 25 consecutive years. Licenses were received by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, Friday morning. The first trapping license went to William Zocholl, Black Creek.

The others of the first ten men receiving licenses are Fred Brondson, P. M. Conkey, A. Lester Koch, Ed. Ward Kilborn, H. A. Shannon, Earl Laux, L. H. Pierce, Ernest Cahill and Otto Stammer.

Four thousand hunting licenses have been received by Mr. Hantschel, 350 trapping licenses, 300 deer tags and 10,000 trapping tags. The hunting licenses bear the number of the license and are green with the words, 1928 Wisconsin hunting license.

LONDON MUSICIAN TO ORGANIZE SYMPHONY

London —(AP)— The formation of a new London orchestra by Sir Thomas Beecham in conjunction with the British Broadcasting Corporation and a prominent phonograph company promises to have a stimulating effect on British music.

Before the war London orchestras held their own when compared with any in the world, and the Beecham Symphony orchestra toured with great success all the principal musical centers of Europe. Since that time it is notorious that orchestral playing in London has fallen off.

The new orchestra is to be a permanent and whole time organization, will have daily rehearsals and give weekly symphony concerts in the Queens Hall, London.

CAPUCINES CELEBRATE 400 YEARS IN AUSTRIA

Vienna —(AP)— Four hundred years ago the foundation stone of the first Capucine convent was laid in this city. The order, which had a pre-war membership of 10,000 monks in the old Austrian empire, now has only one-tenth of it in post-war abbreviated Austria.

The 400th anniversary of the creation of the order has just been solemnized in Vienna. Monsignor Sipel, Austrian chancellor, delivered the festival sermon at the historical church of the Capucines in Vienna.

In their brown robes and long beards the Capucines are well known figures in this city and the provinces. Four centuries ago, when the order was confirmed by Pope Clement VII, its patron, the number grew to 700. It spread through Central Europe and today numbers some 12,000. The members live in some 400 monasteries and undertake missions in China, Africa and Asia Minor. When the power of the church was at its height, the order counted 30,000 in embers and 2,000 monasteries.

A BUSINESS MAN carries Accident and Health Insurance although he may never have been sick in his life and never expects to be. If he figured he WAS GOING to be ill, he'd call in a doctor, not an insurance man.

He carries Fire Insurance on his business establishment or on his warehouse, but not because he EXPECTS them to be burned down. If he did, he'd spend his days and nights watching them.

He carries Liability Insurance on his truck drivers, not because he thinks they are reckless if he did, he'd fire 'em but because they MIGHT run somebody down.

He carries Burglary Insurance on his property even though he never has been robbed and doesn't expect to be. If he had any idea that such WOULD HAPPEN, he'd hire an army of guards.

In other words, it is not against the EXPECTED that he insures himself—it's the UNEXPECTED—the REMOTE POSSIBILITIES. So the wise employer is not—and rightly—that it is good business to protect himself as, and the possible dishonesty of his employees. He finds this protection in Honesty Insurance, commonly known as Fidelity Bonds.

The cost of this protection is low. We'll be glad to supply you with Rates and full information.

A little slow music, professor, please, and we shall chronicle the last game of the 1928 Fox River valley baseball season as far as the Appleton ball club is concerned. Yes, "Hearts and Flowers" will do. Appleton baseball team rang down the curtain on the valley league schedule over the weekend and as a result two more ball games are chalked up on the wrong side of the ledger. Kaukauna beat the local aggregation at Kaukauna Sunday afternoon, 5 to 4 and Monday the boys came back here and dropped a long winded argument to Green Bay, 3 and 2 in 11 innings.

But while the games both were losses, there was redeeming baseball featured in both, particularly in the hurling of Ritten who turned out Kaukauna and Reffke who tossed in a great job against the Bays. Appleton was represented by a patched up infield because of Brautigan's reluctance to play any more this season and Torow's injury a week ago. There were errors, naturally, and one or two bad plays but 10 assists at Kaukauna and 19 at Appleton, and two double plays in the Labor day matinee attest to the fact the games weren't all dumb baseball. Lack of an old baseball head to lead the drive on the field seemed the only thing lacking to put the locals in the win column.

Getting back to Sunday's game at Kaukauna, Ritten pitched a whale of a game for five innings allowing only one hit of the scratch variety during that time. However, in the sixth frame he lost the location of which were mixed up with two doubles and the game seemed gone. His mates later tied the count but dumb base running cost them more scores and a victory.

During the five innings that Ritten was hurling airtight ball, Appleton counted a score which seemed enough to win any game until the sixth inning. Ritten counted the marker after a lusty two bagger, scoring on Crowe's single. Crowe went to second on Murphy's single but when the latter wandered off the bag thinking Van Wyck had been given a walk the Kaws killed off Crowe and a few more runs went galley west.

The big rally for the Kaws came in the sixth when Moore and Les Smith walked and counted on Abbott's double to center, Van Wyck losing the ball completely in the sun. Abbott scored a moment later on Gertz's double. The Kaws scored their fourth run in the seventh when Phillips singled and scored on a squeeze play, Moore laying down a perfect bunt as the Kaukauna third sacklet dashed for the plate. Les Smith then tripled but died on third.

The final marker for Kaukauna and incidentally the winning run came in the ninth when Ritten tickled Kilgass on the knee with a pitched ball. Kramer then rang for the youngster who had batted for Sager and scored when Ray Smith rifled a drive to left for two bases.

Appleton previously had tied the score in the eighth but a miscue cost more runs. Murphy started the inning with a single, Van Wyck walked and Eggert drilled a triple to the right field fence scoring on Reffke's single to center. Reffke had replaced Schultz in the garden. The half pint pitcher-outfielder was caught off third when a squeeze play went wrong. None was out at the time and he's been easily scored for a minute later Brockhaus hit one which bounced over Amidee's head at short.

Monday afternoon the Bays stepped out in the second inning and scored one run although they had the bases populated with none out. Chusman first up, walked. Kirkhoff was safe on a fielder's choice and so was Chusman when Brockhaus dropped a toss from short. Rachel then singled advancing the men and the sacks were loaded. Llewellyn, next up in turn, base and Eggert relayed the ball home to Murphy forcing Chusman. Murphy tossed to first to get Llewellyn and Radke fired the ball back to the catcher who made a dive for Kirkhoff. Llewellyn called the runner safe though many fans thought him out. It would have been a rare triple play if completed.

The Bays counted again in the fifth on a double and a single. Appleton evened the count at two all in the seventh inning when Brockhaus was reached for one of Llewellyn's outs and set it down in the eighth. The game then went into the extra innings Appleton missing a chance to count in the tenth when Murphy tried to make a double out of a single and was caught at second. The winning run for the Bays came in the eleventh inning when Chusman was safe on an error, was sacrificed to second by Llewellyn and scored when Radke hit Brockhaus who tossed to first and the latter obligingly let the ball slip off the top of his glove.

Second Guesses

Both games were tough to lose and showed the need of a couple of old time ball players to lead the youngsters' minds on their work. Appleton also showed a need of someone in there driving them until the last man. "The old fight" was the thing that was missing.

Ritten won an extra $5 for his trouble at Kaukauna when he scored the first run of the game. The gift was from Edward Grobe, a candidate for sheriff of the county. Stan Staidl had up ten bucks for the first homer or five for the longest hit. Les Smith got it with the initial three bagger of the game.

Appleton had a man killed in both games by being hit with a batted ball. Sunday Gosha got in front of a hopper from Murphy's bat and Monday Schultz bunted down the first base line and accidentally stepped on the ball in his hurry to get to the sack.

A pebble on the diamond at Kaukauna made Amidee look bad in the eighth inning of Sunday's game. The ball was a nice hopper until it landed in front of him and the next jump was a mile over his head. He said plenty but it was not heard as far as he stands. Shades of the world series a few years ago!

Appleton got 11 hits in the fracas at Kaukauna as compared with four at Green Bay. The two batters coming together in the sixth did more damage than a half dozen hits. Ritten named three walks and struck out six during the day. Abbott gave two passes and whiffed 5.

That the Appleton infield was working in fine shape Monday is best borne out by the two double plays pulled off against the fast moving Green Sox. There's many a fan who figures the first should have been a triple play. The second play killing was Brockhaus to Ritten to Radke.

Chusman was the first in a fast and furious Appleton infield in the eighth inning. Eggert ran over to short to get Chusman's drive and the ball caromed off his glove toward second base. Brockhaus nailed it, however, and tossed the tummy short out at first.

Boys Crowe furnished plenty of entertainment for the fans both of the afternoon. He made a beautiful run and slab of Lammoye hit back of second retiring the runner at first. Crowe furnished a lot of comedy in the fifth when he scored a couple summersaults while trying to get to first base and made himself a hero with that home run over the fence.

At Gosha went to second base in the late stages of the game when he was sacrificed to second by Llewellyn and scored when Radke hit Brockhaus who tossed to first and the latter obligingly let the ball slip off the top of his glove.

CINCINNATI REDS BEAT CARDS TWICE IN HOLIDAY GAMES

Pid Purdy Comes Through With Hits Which Result in Fall of Leaders

The annual flock of Labor day doubleheaders have been written in to the records to the satisfaction of Miller Huggins but to the unmitigated chagrin of Bill McKechnie and Connie Mack.

Huggins' crew of New York Yankees got only an even break with the Boston Red Sox Monday but added a game to their lead when Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics slipped a couple of cogs at Washington and went down twice before the Senators' attack.

McKechnie could see no humor in the fact that his St. Louis Cardinals, setting the pace in the National league, were upset twice by the Cincinnati Reds while the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates were cleaning up double bills against the Phillies and the Chicago Cubs respectively.

The Cardinals gave the Reds a terrific battle in the first game, before they went down, 6 to 5 in the 11 innings, but were overwhelmed in the nightcap, 8 to 2. Twenty-nine players saw service in the opener which saw the Reds tie the score in the ninth and win in the eleventh, each time on hits by Pid Purdy.

The Giants moved next, the Cubs into second place by knocking over the Phillies, 4 to 3 and 3 to 2. After the Giants had scored four runs in the first inning of the first game, the Phils valiantly pecked away at Jack Scott's offerings but could do no better than get within one run of a tie. The nightcap was a romp for McGraw's men.

In a savage batting mood, the Pirates crushed the Cubs in the morning game at Forbes Field, 16 to 1, and then played steady ball behind Ray Kremer's effective pitching to win the second, 6 to 3.

The Brooklyn Dodgers were rained out of their twin bill with the Boston Braves.

It took some tall stepping by the Yankees to get as good as an even break against the Red Sox. Huggins' somewhat tamed maulers just barely earned the decision in the opener, 8 to 7, before going down before Russell and Morris in the second, 4 to 3. The Red Sox got 15 hits off four Yankee pitchers in the opener, one of them being Jack Rothrock's homer with the bases loaded in the fourth inning.

But the champions' early lead of seven runs, piled up while Ed Morris was in the box saved them. The second game was a pitcher's battle between Henry Johnson and Jack Russell with the Red Sox pitcher earning the edge.

The Senators outplayed the Athletics to win both games at Washington, 6 to 1 and 5 to 4. Hadley held Mack's tribe to six hits and fanned eight men in the opener, outpitching Howard Ehmke by a wide margin. Fred Marberry's relief pitching decided the second game.

The Chicago White Sox vaulted from seventh to fifth place when they sank the Detroit Tigers twice, 5 to 2 and 7 to 5 while the Browns were beating Cleveland in both ends of the double-header at St. Louis.

The Browns made full use of their eight hits to capture the opener, 3 to 3, but the second game developed into a slugfest, but Dan Howley's men won by the football score of 16 to 10.

The Senators outplayed the Athletics to win both games at Washington, 6 to 1 and 5 to 4. Hadley held Mack's tribe to six hits and fanned eight men in the opener, outpitching Howard Ehmke by a wide margin. Fred Marberry's relief pitching decided the second game.

Running up a lead of three to one on the first day of the two-day series against Great Britain, the Americans just coasted through to victory Tuesday, winning two matches and losing two. Only the veteran, Francis T. Hunter, lost a match on Saturday. The four young players, John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison in the singles and Junior Coen and John Dore in the doubles, all came through.

RAY SCHALK GOES INTO BUSINESS IN CHICAGO

Chicago (AP)—Ray Schalk, former catcher for the Chicago White Sox and the club's manager until he surrendered control this summer to Lena Blackburne, is going into business on Chicago's south side.

With Ben Stevenson, holder of the Dixie amateur golf championship, Schalk will open a large recreation parlors.

Ritten batted for Brockhaus and turned in a great play on Rachel and caught the first baseman's line drive. Crowe pulled off a hit in the same inning by stretching his six feet something into the air to get another line drive.

Someone had to be the goat of Monday's game and it turned out to be Radke. He let Chusman's hit go between his legs to start the last inning and then dropped Gosha's loss of Rachel's grounder to let the phat boy score from second base. One error's bad enough but two's—

Wins Toronto Swim

"Plans for the future? Say let me get some food!" Perhaps not in those words, but with the same meaning spoke Ethel Hertle, 20-year-old New York aquatic star, immediately after she had won the 10-mile Toronto marathon swim for women entrants only, thereby copping a money prize of $10,000. She, with Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel, were the favorites to win. Her swimming time was 5 hours 34 minutes and 36 seconds. Miss Hertle is shown here as she appears in "cits" and as she looks in a bathing suit.

Around The Sport World

I SHOULD GET HURT? NAW!

Football is the meal ticket for athletes in practically every American college, so it is unusual to note from the report of the athletic council at City College of New York that football lost money and that basketball made enough dough to pay the freight for all other sports.

But the boys at C. C. N. Y. aren't as keen about football as they are hot on basketball and, quite naturally, the football teams turned out there aren't so warm.

One of the football coaches was lamenting several years ago about what an impossible task they had trying to make a team at the institution.

The squad rebelled openly against scrimmaging in practice," he said. "They would go through signals and kicking and, passing formations, but they wouldn't work on the tackling dummy."

"They told us that it was bad enough to get hurt on Saturday without going out and getting banged up in such foolish business as hurting each other for practice."

ALL AROUND ATHLETES
The Army may benefit by recruiting of ready-made football stars, but the system at the military academy develops a lot of its own men. The young men who go to West Point are naturally inclined to athletics, but not all of them are stars when they get into the cadet uniform.

The average cadet who never gets into a varsity uniform because of the system, has a much better foundation for general athletics than the average graduate from any other institution, including, perhaps, the naval academy.

This summer, for instance, 359 new cadets reported at West Point for the plebe class and they were divided into six companies and the companies were assigned in turn for one week of instruction in six different sports—football, baseball, basketball, lacrosse, soccer and track.

Each cadet spent an hour on the field, five days a week, for six weeks, learning the fundamentals of these sports under skilled coaches. They weren't allowed their choice of sports and they had to make required marks in each sport just as they are in the class room.

The best football men, of course, were assigned to the football coach, the most promising baseball men to the baseball coach, and so on. But the point is that the football men and the other specialists are forced

HOLD OSHKOSH REGATTA DESPITE STORMY SEAS

Oshkosh (AP)—Despite stormy seas, rain, and two capsize, the last heat of the two-day regatta for outboard motorboats on the triangular course over Lake Winnebago was held here Monday afternoon.

Five of the scheduled eight races were run off here in two days and the remaining three races will be conducted later. Trophies were awarded to the high point boats in each race.

The class B local was taken by Ted Wee driven by Horace Hurlbut of Oshkosh. Chief Oshkosh driven by Vincent Rogers of Oshkosh was second and Half Pint, piloted by Jimmy Tomlinson of Oshkosh, was third.

Results of the other four races were class B free-for-all, Chief Oshkosh, class C, first, Bullitt, Charles Tice of Oshkosh; class C free-for-all, first, Duane Wild, Fred Mikkelsen of Milwaukee; class D free-for-all, first, Bullitt, Oshkosh.

KIM-LITTLE CHUTE BEATS NEE-MENASHA AND WINS PENNANT

Take Lead in First Inning by Knocking Egan from Pitching Mound

Kimberly—The strong Kimberly-Little Chute baseball team won their second consecutive Fox River Valley League pennant here Monday when they defeated Neenah-Menasha 7 to 1.

The game was Kimberly's from the start when they got three runs in the first inning. Kotal tripled, Len Smith was hit by a pitched ball and stole second and both men scored on Boots Lamer's triple over center. Focah then hit a sacrifice fly to center to score Boots. They added another run in the third and forced Becker from the box Egan taking up the burden for the twin cities. In the fourth inning the Hollanders added three more runs to finish their scoring. The Neenah-Menasha team got their lone tally in the last inning on two errors and a hit.

The Kimberly-Little Chute team won seventeen games and lost but three, two to Kaukauna by scores of 13 to 5 and 2 to 1, and the other game to Fond du Lac by the score of 2 to 1. They scored a total of 129 runs against their opponent's 50.

In the league leader's lineup we have Harvey Hartjes of Little Chute catching. Harvey had one of his best years behind the plate. He hit in the pinches and caught many a baserunner trying to steal. Clarence Pocaan did the twirling and was only forced to leave the mound twice, both times against Kaukauna. "Focah" averaged around 10 strikeouts per game and had four shutout games to his credit and in six other games the opposition only gathered one run. On first the leaders had Charlie Schell who was always fighting to win. Schell hit well over the .225 mark and was moved up from sixth to second place on the batting order of the team.

At second Manager Marty Lamers favored. Although Marty was in a fading slump the first part of the season from managerial worries he finally started hitting and hit over .500 for the last eight games. Although slowed up some he was a great help to the team in the pinches and he used his years of experience to great advantage in managing the team to a very successful season.

On third the veteran Louis (Butch) Rhein did his stuff. Butch was known to hit in the pinches and in one game saved the day with a bare-hand stop to throw his man out at first base to retire the side.

Eddie Kotal got the hard ones around shortstop. He figured in many a double play and was one of the most feared base runners in the league. He probably was one of the few players in the league to steal third base and go from first to third base on a sacrifice hit.

In the outfield Kimberly-Little Chute had two of the best fielders in the league and both should make the league allstar teams namely T. J. (Boots) Lamers and Len Smith. Len played center and led the league in hitting the first part of the season while Boots who played left field is the league leading batter hitting close to the .500 mark. Both men have good throwing arms to the bases.

In right field George (Carl) Lemmers and George Vander Loop alternated depending on the opposing pitcher. Vandy besides playing rightfield went into pitch when Pocaan was forced out and could always be depended upon to hold the visitors down.

As a utility player Joe Hammen who was secured from the Little Chute team of the Inter County League, the Papermakers had one of the best. He was a good man with the stick and could play the infield or outfield which ever was needed. At present manager Marty Lamers is trying to book some good games with other teams to show the home fans who supported the team so well how some of the other leagues

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
MCGRAW has won most of his many pennants on the road. The Cincinnati want Betts, a former Philly pitcher, from the St. Pauls. And the Yankees want Tesmer, the St. P. catcher. The Jint players call Ott "Harold Teen". And he nailed one of them for calling him "Baby Face". And he and Shanty Hogan are the most popular Jints on the club. Leigh Count is getting violet rays on his legs. But the rays didn't do his sweetie, Anita Penbody, any good. The Cub players bunk the stuff that Jimmy Wilson and Mickey Cochrane are the king catchers. And say that their Gabby Hartnett is the grandest in the game. Ump Cy Rigler says that Carl Hubbell, Jint rookie pitcher, is swell. And has more stuff than he has seen in so long. Charley Herzog says that McGraw never won a fist fight. But Charley didn't retire undefeated. Ty Cobb gave him one awful shellacking. Terry, Lindstrom, Jackson and Cohen are McGraw's own products.

In the state compare with the Fox River Valley league.

Jack Lelivelt's Team Now a Point Out of Second Place in A. A.

Chicago—(P)—Labor day double-headers, which mark the start of the final American association pennant dash, have lifted Minneapolis and Milwaukee hopes, dimmed those of Indianapolis and all but shattered those of Kansas City and St. Paul. Refusing to crack under the strain of leadership in the hard fight for the gonfalon, Minneapolis strengthened its hold on first place in the holiday jamboree by nipping St. Paul twice, 6 to 4, and 6 to 5, while Indianapolis split with the lowly but troublesome Louisville Colonels, 6 to 1, and 4 to 5.

Jack Lelivelt's fast stepping Milwaukee Brewers went into a virtual tie with Indianapolis for second place by dropping Kansas City twice, 5 to 0 and 4 to 3. It was the seventh straight victory for Milwaukee and its teeth straight over the Blues, who are now five full games from the top.

The Millers now hold a two and a half game lead over Milwaukee and Indianapolis, while St. Paul, in fifth place, is seven and a half games from first place. And as there are about 20 games left for each team, it begins to appear as if the pennant lies between Minneapolis, Indianapolis and Milwaukee.

In the other holiday twin bill, Toledo and Columbus split even. Toledo winning the opener, 9 to 7, and dropping the second, 4 to 5.

NEW LAWRENCE COACH HERE MONDAY, TUESDAY

Clarence Rasmussen, Milwaukee, the new Lawrence college football coach, visited in the city a few hours Monday and Tuesday. Coach Rasmussen recently returned from a trip through Canada after having spent the summer at his camp in the northern part of the state. He is not expected to take over his work at Lawrence until Sept. 10. Rasmussen was accompanied by Norman Widgund who will be one of Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite's linemen at Wisconsin this fall.

300 ENTERED IN MEN'S LAKE ONTARIO MARATHON

Toronto, Ont.—(P)—More than 300 swimmers take to Lake Ontario's cold waters Wednesday in search of the $25,000 pot of gold placed there by William Wrigley, millionaire sportsman.

First swim awaits the winner of the Wrigley marathon of 15 miles, one of the features of the Canadian national exhibition here. Three hundred and forty male swimmers have been entered and it seems certain that at least 300 of these will start. In addition, the first five finishers in the women's marathon of Aug. 29, over a ten mile course, are eligible to compete although none has announced her intention of doing so.

General Staff Of Army Celebrates 25th Birthday

Washington—That much kidded "brass hat" organization of the army, the General Staff, celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday the other day. The event went unnoticed by the public at large, but present members of the staff in Washington marked it with an Army and Navy club luncheon. General Summerall, chief of staff, and Acting Secretary of War Robbins attending. There was considerable discussion of the accomplishments of application for those 25 years of the general staff principle to the American army, particularly in view of the fact that the staff was terribly tested in the World war before it even reached voting age. There was no room for doubt that military opinion is now and always has been agreed that the task of mobilizing, equipping, training and shipping 2,000,000 men to France, fighting out successfully America's part in the war, recalling the overseas forces and demobilizing the whole 5,000,000 strength of the war army was made possible efficiently only through general staff machinery.

BIRTH AND REBIRTH
Much was said at the luncheon in tribute to Elihu Root, who fathered as war secretary a quarter century ago the first General Staff law. Much credit also was given to Major General William H. Carter for the important part he played in that struggle for modern military principles of the organization and command. But it is to the calm political courage of Secretary Newton D. Baker alone that can be ascribed the situation that permitted the United States to enter the war in 1917 with the General Staff functioning in full authority. It was done by virtue of his executive act restoring to the staff all the powers of which the National Defense act of 1916 sought to strip it as an aftermath of the century old struggle between the line of the army and the permanent military bureaus in the war department. What happened was that the bill specifically restored to the bureau chiefs, the adjutant general, quartermaster general, judge advocate general and others, legal powers they had exercised before the General Staff law was enacted. Army legal authorities read the act that way; the department of justice concurred.

BAKER UPHELD
The General Staff was legally relegated to a capacity of military advisers, the chief of staff had no definite coordinating authority. Secretary Baker himself, as a lawyer, so read the law. But he found a loophole of escape from its clear meaning. He held that the first responsibility for interpretation of the act rested with him as secretary of war. And in that capacity he elected to say that the first responsibility for interpretation of the act confirmed the staff in all its previous powers and duties, flying in the very face of every legal opinion on the point, including his own. On that slim legal basis of General authority, the country went to war.

250 ELECTION BOARD MEMBERS AT MEETING

About 250 members of Outagamie county election boards attended a meeting Friday evening at the court house at which election laws and regulations were explained and an hour period given over to answering questions. Every board in the county was represented at the meeting. John A. Lonsdorf, district attorney, John Hantschel, county clerk, and Judge Fred V. Heinemann addressed the gathering. The meeting was the first ever held in the county and was characterized by the willingness of election board officials to become acquainted with election laws.

POLICE FIND CAR ABANDONED HERE

A Nash touring car of rather ancient vintage was found abandoned on E. John-st Saturday morning and reported to the police station. Police are making an effort to trace the owner who is supposed to live in the vicinity.

a year later and began mobilizing its full military power. On the flat of one man, Secretary Baker, alone rested the legality of all the vast powers wielded by the staff organization at home or by Pershing's general staff in France. Ultimately Congress duly legislated it back into more definite legal existence and in the post-war Defense act of 1920 its place was secured beyond question by statutory enactments certain of judicial approval should there ever arise need to test it.

Washington was chosen as messenger by Governor Dinwiddie of Virginia to make a 1000-mile journey to warn the French not to occupy the Ohio Valley.

The French refused and the French and Indian War followed, in which Washington served bravely. In 1759 he married Martha Custis.

Washington was unanimously elected commander-in-chief of the Continental armies in 1775, after the Battle of Lexington. It was his task to make an army out of a mob. After the war Washington went back to Mount Vernon, but was chosen to preside over the convention that framed the Constitution. After that there seemed but one man to be chosen president. He was inaugurated April 30, 1789. (To Be Continued)

HOMEcoming BIG SUCCESS DESPITE VARIABLE WEATHER

Celebration Biggest of Its Kind Ever Presented by American Legion Post

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — Notwithstanding variable weather with threatening clouds, cold winds and intermittent showers, the three day homecoming festival of the American Legion Post of the American Legion staged the largest event of its kind ever put on by the organization. The carnival was held at the grounds near Dickson and Washington-ave, beginning on Saturday with a parade shortly after noon and ending late on Monday evening. The midway was transformed into a long amusement park, with plenty of booths, refreshment stands and a merry-go-round, and ferris wheel. Perhaps the most popular of all the features for children were the Shetland ponies, which appeared ridden by local boys at the parade and later around the opened arena reserved for their use. Wrestling and boxing matches proved popular also.

Two ball games on Sunday and Monday afternoon with Dale and Janawa attracted large crowds and the Western Air circus with four planes constantly circling overhead, carried passengers and staged their stunts.

The parade on Monday noon was most interesting. It was headed by the members of the city police force and drum and bugle corps of the legion led by D. O. Bissett. The float in line was a float dedicated to the members of the G. A. R. and the Women's Relief corps. Four veterans of the Civil war were able to appear, their car being driven by a Spanish-American war soldier, Ray Thomas.

JUNIOR AUXILIARY IN LINE
Post commanders and heads of the legion auxiliary were preceded by the Junior auxiliary members. This feature was very attractive, as each of the junior members were attired in gowns of the auxiliary colors, babies in parasols and decorated doll carriages added to the feature.

The show of new automobile models were ushered in by two antiques of which the city is very proud, both being very old models which have been kept in excellent condition. Besides the various motor dealers were the following New London business houses represented by various attractive floats: New London Bottling works, Franklin house, Hudson Kozzy Korner, Trayer's Drug store, Edison Wood Products, Deep Rock Oil company, Stofor company, and New London Ice and Fuel company. Much was furnished by the New London city band, the Girls' Legion band of Milwaukee and a clever float, on which an orchestra played, which represented the Fay R. Smith company.

Special attention was given, the float entered by the Tibby Harzware company, which won first place in the contest. In this a color scheme of golden yellow and green was used, the whole car being covered with cedar twigs and sprays of golden rod. Mr. and Mrs. Tibby captured first place last year with their airplane float of the Spirit of New London. Second honors went to the Cristy store whose float was a clever simulation of an armored gun boat in camouflage, the latter being carried out by use of many stripes of linoleum samples. Third place was given Theodore Knapstein who entered a great basket of autumn flowers drawn by a small brown pony.

Others who gave fine entertainment were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kirszenzki, expert sharpshooters and LaVerne LaBeau with his lariat act.

TWO CARS TURN OVER IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — A car driven by Mrs. Patricia Dowd of Northport, in which were riding Mrs. James Dowd and her daughters Aileen and Kathleen, overturned in a ditch on the Northport-New London road on Sunday morning. The women were driving in for church service when the car skidded in loose gravel. While the car was somewhat damaged, none of the party was seriously injured.

Mayme Jenile, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jenile, suffered a broken arm and a severe gash on her leg when the car in which the family was returning home to Ironwood, Mich., overturned at the schoolhouse corner three miles south of the city. Mr. Jenile, it is said, became confused at the sharp turn and the car overturned. Riders of the car were bent and glass broken.

POLICE CHIEF'S BROTHER SUCCEUMBS AFTER STROKE

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — Chief of Police Andrew Luck has received word of the death of his brother, Bernard Luck, 56, of Oshkosh, which occurred suddenly Sunday evening while Mr. and Mrs. Luck were visiting relatives at Rhinelander. Mr. and Mrs. Luck had been guests at the Andrew Luck home here on Saturday evening and their guests were preparing to take their good night around the city when Mr. Luck was seized with a convulsion. His condition immediately became serious and he died at 10 o'clock. The body was taken to Oshkosh for burial. Survivors are his widow, one daughter and one son, two sisters, Mrs. Philip Hook at Dousman, and Miss Mary Kueck of this city, and his brother.

DON'T FORGET THE BIG DANCE AT SHEAHAN'S HALL, LITTLE CHUTE TONIGHT. Good music furnished.

CAR TURNS OVER IN DITCH AND CONFINES ITS FIVE OCCUPANTS

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — A car driven by John Phillips of Evanston, Ill., skidded in the gravel road and turned over in the ditch. Mr. Phillips and the four other members of the party were imprisoned in the overturned car, although no one was injured. The ditch at the scene of the accident is deep and marshy and as a result the car with its occupants remained unnoticed for some time. Finally a passing tourist discovered the overturned car and reported the accident to a local garage. A wrecker was dispatched to the scene, the occupants of the car released and the car, which was undamaged, placed back on the road.

The Rev. Adolph Sprengling performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Kirchenberg, and Miss Amanda Franzen. Henry Hoffman and Edwin Boller acted as the bride groom. After a short

NEW LONDON NINE WINS TWO GAMES

Defeats Weyauwega, 7 to 3, and Crushes Dale Nine by 13 to 1 Score

New London — In the baseball games held during the Legion homecoming New London took both games. Against Beckon, both games, Sunday and Monday, the home team, formed Sunday's battery, while Adsit and Roman performed for Weyauwega. New London knocked Adsit out of the box in the sixth when they scored three runs. Allen took his place. Becker pitched a good game although his support was ragged at times. The game ended 7 to 3 with New London on the long end.

On Labor day the Dale team gave a weird exhibition of ball playing, missing easy flies and grounders. Donner, first man up for the locals, started with a safe hit and he came up for a second hit in the same inning. The crowd saw seven New Londoners cross the plate in this inning.

With bases full in the first Sterns hit a grounder to the Dale pitcher who tossed the ball over the catcher's head. A fielder helped matters along by dropping an easy fly and with a double play in sight the shortstop held another grounder too long to force a man. Wing cleared the other batters with a two bagger. New London counted another score in the second and eighth inning, while in the seventh they made four runs on more of Dale's errors. Al Wing who pitched for the home team had his out working to perfection and the Dale team only could secure one run off of him. The game ended with a score 13 to 1.

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All you can do is soothe them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than it is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. You have eased a sick child without use of a single dangerous drug. Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot put away. And it's always ready for the cruder pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhoea, oftenest the foe of older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Quaker Heat Circulating Cabinets for Oil or Coal

Inside that beautiful cabinet portraying natural mahogany there is a heating unit equal to four ordinary stoves—a plant that will heat a whole house.

The Oil-burning Circulator is a marvel of convenience. It burns furnace oil on an entirely new principle.

There are no moving parts, nothing to get out of order. The Coal-burning Quaker Heat Circulator has the same handsome outward appearance as the oil-burner.
